With the temperature 80 and humidity 39, or nineteen degrees above normal, Boston to-day sweltered under a combination unequalled in any other section of the country. All along the eastern coast it was nearly as oppressive.

Nostheid, Vt., had a temperature of 70, and Providence the same, with a few towns and cities reporting 68. For the most part it was within one or two degrees of the Turkish bath condition prevailing here.

Out West there were cool breezes, a dry atmosphere and comfort generally. The day started here decently enough with 62 degrees at 4 a. m., but in an hour it was 66. By 7 o'clock when thousands were hurrying to work it was 68, and everybody knew from the "feel" of the sticky weather that they were in for a hot one. At 11 o'clock the thin line of quicksilver had mounted to 80 in the thermometers, and starched suits and collars had long wilted in the excessive perspiration induced by old General Humidity who was on the job with a vengeance.

Showers along towards night were held out as a hope by Forecaster John W. Smith.

"If we don't get them we'll beat the record for June," he said. "That was made on June 29th, 1874."

Lancers Turn Out to Celebrate Birthday

With lances shining in the sunlight, clad in their red coats, white plumes and pennants, 150 of the National Lancers made a handsome military exhibition to-day as they started from the armory on Bulfinch street with Commander John S. Barrows at their head. The event was their seventy-second anniversary.

Notable in the line were Commander Jackson Caldwell of the veteran troop; Lieutenant Appleton, commander of the enlisted troop; Captain A. P. Payette, commander of the first associate troop, and Cornet E. S. Taylor, commander of the second associate troop.

Captain John S. Barrows and His Charger Leading National Lancers.

The route of the parade was Bowdoin square, Hanover, Court, Blackstone, Commercial, State, Mrood, Milk, Washington, Bromfield, Tremont, Boylston, Dartmouth, where the commander reviewed the column. At the Copley Square Hotel the ladies and friends of the corps awaited them for a short rest.

After the parade the troop returned to the armory and marched to Faneuil Hall where a banquet was served with Governor Draper and staff as guests. At the guest table were Capt. Bennett, Capt. C. A. Parker, Rev. W. H. Rider, Capt. Holt, Gen. Brigham, Governor Draper, Capt. Barrows, Brand, W. A. Morse, Captain Richardson, Merrim, Captain Stolfe, and Captain Pierce.

JAIL CELL FOR GIRL FAVORED BY THE RICH

NEW YORK, June 14.—Elinor Beattie, a young woman who has been a protege of Mme. Johanna Gadski, Metropolitan Opera prima donna, and held a favorite with society people here and in London, was arrested in the British capitol to-day, according to cable advices, on a New York extradition warrant. She is charged with having stolen $1,500 worth of jewelry from a Fifth avenue dealer.

Miss Beattie, it is said, obtained the gems under the name of Mrs. Margaret B. Stearns, a wealthy woman of No. 11 West One Hundred and Fourth street. Mrs. Stearns, it is said, owes had Miss Beattie as a traveling companion. An indictment has been found against Miss Beattie.

The woman, according to the detectives, is a remarkable character, most clever wits. It is said that she has been variously known as the Widow Beverly, Miss Bruce Blant and "Pretty" Beattie.

Miss Beattie was studying music ostensibly in Italy when she first met Mrs. Stearns, who became interested in the younger woman's musical career and took her on a tour of Eastern Europe, bringing her back to this country.

MUSHROOM WEIGHS JUST 33 POUNDS

PITTSBURG, June 14.—In a field six miles back of Pittsburg Dr. Allen J. Willetts, professor of economics and English in the Carnegie school, discovered a mushroom which, after careful weighing appears to have everything in recent history beaten. The mushroom weighed, after scouts places had been broken off, thirty-three and one-half pounds. It was a foot and a two and one-half by thirty-two inches over the top and is nine inches thick and is edible.

BARS UP FOR "HIGH COLLAR" DIPLOMATS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—"We do not want a high-collar policy for our diplomatic service," said Assistant Secretary of State Wilson in explaining the new system of training for the entrance to the consular and embassies and for consular service. Describing the sort of men wanted, he said: "Each man should be able to pass muster in cosmopolitan society, but he must, above all, be a normal, first-class type of born American: if we cannot get both we will do without cosmopolitanism." A school for diplomats has been started. When a young man has passed the examination he is brought to Washington for thirty days' instruction before entering the service.

Vanderbilt's coach Vanrare, drawn by four grays and driven by himself. Judge Moore's entry of mixed bays driven by himself was second; Miss Ella Rose, driven by herself, third. Vanderbilt was placed first on points and condition of horses, Judge Moore fifth, and Miss Brocklebank, sister-in-law of George Westinghouse, Jr., sixth.

BROKERS' ABSENCE ANNOYS ASSIGNEE

PROVIDENCE, June 14.—John A. Tillinghast, the assignee for the brokerage firm of Lewis H. Tappan & Co., was annoyed today to learn that Lewis H. Tappan, head of the firm, had left the city for New York despite his promise to remain and assist the assignee. It is understood that Frank D. Johnson, the confidential manager of the firm, who has not been in Providence since the failure, is in New York with Judge Charles C. Munford, Johnson's personal counsel, and his stay will prevent here in a few days. Judge Munford said he was in communication with both Mr. Johnson and Mr. Tappan, and that the latter was in New York on a business trip.

SKULL CRUSHED ON A WILD JOY RIDE

NEW YORK, June 14.—Harry Yorkel, nineteen-year-old son of the proprietor of a garage at No. 137 East Eighty-third street, went on a "joy ride" in a big touring car which he smashed out of his father's place of business, with John Gleason, a friend, and May Lane and May O'Hara. When the machine smashed against a telegraph post in the Bronx early to-day Gleason's skull was crushed and Yorkel and the two girls were tossed into a machine, where the police found them. Yorkel died while the police were attending to his companion.

TROOPS IN PURSUIT OF MUTINEERS

MANILA, June 14.—Details of the mutiny of the company of native constabulary stationed at Davao on the island of Mindanao on the night of June 6, show that the attack on the officers was made unexpectedly by the mutineers. The mutineers then fled to the hills after taking thirty rifles and 5,000 rounds of ammunition.

Governor Walker summoned the neighboring planters as soon as the mutineers were out of sight and proceeded to fortify a convent in preparation for a long siege. Most of the planters were armed only with revolvers, but when the natives made an attack on the convent on the afternoon of the seventh, they fought with much spirit and drove the mutineers away.

The mutineers made a desperate attack upon the beleaguered garrison and a number were killed and wounded before they retired. Among the wounded were Collector Roddy and Messrs. Burchfield, Stephens, Reynolds and Hernandez.

As soon as news of the mutiny reached Hatl, forty-six miles southeast of Davao, a company of constabulary hurried to the relief of Davao. Their approach caused the disloyal constabulary force to withdraw during the night.

With the receipt of the news of the mutiny also came word that detachments of the Twenty-third Infantry have reached Davao and have succeeded in restoring order. Several columns of troops went in pursuit of the mutineers.

It is believed here that the mutiny was purely local, resulting from difficulties over food supplies or the care of women members of the family of the constabulary.

Brigadier General Harry H. Bandholtz, chief of the constabulary will assume personal command of the forces sent in pursuit of the mutineers. Several companies of troops, both regular and constabulary, are already in the field.

Acting Governor General Forbes said: "This affair has not changed my opinion of the constabulary, nor my belief in the the loyalty of the force."

DO NOT JOLT THIS GIRL; SHE'LL BURST

OMAHA, Neb., June 14.—Helen Wells, a twenty-year-old girl, is in constant peril of being blown up, her only hope of life resting on the action of physicians in order to dissolve a quantity of guncotton she swallowed. Doctors fear to operate on the girl because of the danger of explosion, and all day she has been resting on a heavy mattress with a double set of springs, tied in such a manner that she cannot move a muscle. The girl had a quarrel with her sweetheart and was attempting to commit suicide when she was taken to the police station, and in the surgeon's room grabbed a bottle and swallowed the contents, which proved to be guncotton. Unless she explodes to-day the explosive will have become dissolved.

HELD AS DESERTER.

Frank Joyce, who was arrested in Cambridge Saturday for creating a disturbance, when arraigned in the Cambridge Police Court to-day was found to be a deserter from Fort McKinley, Portland, Me. He was held in $200 and the federal authorities notified.

MRS. GOULD ON RACK VICTOR OVER LAWYER

Baffles All Attempts to Trap Her Into Damaging Admissions on Cross-Examinations—Tells the Cost of Dresses in Society.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The cross-examination of Mrs. Viola Katherine Clemmons Gould in her suit for separation and $125,000 alimony from her husband, Howard Gould, ended to-day with her the victor at all stages over Delancy Nicoll, her husband's attorney.

It was another duel of wits that the throng of spectators witnessed during the two hours that Mrs. Gould was on the stand. Attorney Nicoll attempted to trap her by questions about Dustin Farnum and their trips about the country, but she foiled her inquisitor at every turn.

C. J. Shearn, attorney for Mrs. Gould, took up the re-direct as soon as Mr. Nicoll had concluded. He questioned Mrs. Gould

MRS. BENNETT IS HEARD FROM; SAYS 'NO HOPE'

Harry T. Upham, father of Mrs. Lucetta Bennett, the widow of Holland Bennett, who was lost at sea on his honeymoon, to-day received the following wireless message from his daughter:

On board Berlin, June 14.

LUCETTA.

Everett Bennett, a brother of Holland, said to-day:

"We never expect to discover exactly how Holland disappeared, but we believe him to be dead. We do not think he fell a victim to robbers, as he would not be an inviting prey, and, of course, murder by the Black Hand is too absurd to discuss.

"I am satisfied that my brother fell overboard, either through an attack of dizziness or by some injury. He had appendicitis twice and Dr. Cabot performed an operation. He never thought my brother would recover and he had not been in good health since. Ever since he had news the slightest injury to the abdomen would affect Holland like a kick would a healthy man—he was absolutely helpless.

"If he did not fall overboard from dizziness he struck himself in some manner, was knocked completely out and fell overboard. That's the only way I can account for his death. He did not kill himself, for he was not of that sort, and there was the last fellow in the world that would have to think of such a thing."

Mrs. Bennett is expected to arrive in New York about June 22, and will be met there by members of her own and of her husband's family.

WOMAN MINISTER TO MARRY CLERGYMAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 14.—The Rev. Emma E. Nutter of the People's Methodist Church of this city, the only regularly ordained woman preacher in the State, has announced her engagement to the Rev. J. L. Cairns of Osborneville, N. J., a minister in the same conference. Miss Nutter says she will not give up her work in the church. "Mr. Cairns will come here to live," she said, "and I rather expect that the conference will name him as my assistant, which will allow us to labor in the same field."

METCALF DIES FROM BURNS ON STEAMER

NEW YORK, June 14.—Louis V. Metcalf, a salesman of No. 108 University road, Brookline, Mass., who was burned while in his berth on the Boston steamer Yarmouth, is dead at St. Vincent's Hospital. Metcalf was smoking cigarettes in his berth and the sheets were set on fire.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, June 14.—With the great Addison Joss, in Winter a sporting editor and in Summer a baseball player, serving up his justly celebrated fast ball for the Cleveland team, Manager Lake of the Red Sox had to do considerable figuring to pick out a twirler to offset the big, good-natured Clevelander.

In the third game of the series and the Red Sox needed to win in order to have a chance for an even break on the campaign, Lake had Arellanes, Steele and Ryan groomed for the fray, but he didn't make his selection until all of them had warmed up.

Doc Gessler got back in the game and it was hoped that his batting eye would be in working order when he faced Joss. The Red Sox have fallen off in stick work lately, but this is not to be wondered at considering the changes that have had to be made owing to injuries.

Harry Wolter went back to first base and will stay there while Jake Stahl sits in the grandstand nursing a dislocated finger. Jake will be out of the game for three or four days.

Before the game the Nap leader gave out the interesting information that he may pitch Cy Young right back against the Red Legs in to-morrow's mix up. Lajoie says he is not sure positively that he would pitch the old fellow, but he stated that he may use him. This is good news for the fans for they never weary of seeing the veteran work.

DRAPER OBEYS MELLEN, SAYS WASHBURN

Governor Draper was a target for attack in the debate on the speech against the Holding Bill made to-day in the House by Representative Robert M. Washburn of Worcester, chairman of the railroad committee and leader in the fight against the Merger measure.

Washburn, who, like Governor Draper, is a Republican, branded the bill "poor business, poor law, poor ethics, and poor politics." He resumed to-day the speech interrupted by adjournment on Friday. He had tilts with Garcelon of Newton, Cushing of Boston, Saunders of Clinton and Bailey of Lexington, all supporters of the bill.

One significant feature of the day was the activity of the new Haven lobby. They tried to win over Democrats. It is rumored at the State House that several more Boston Democrats have been "converted" to-day.

Mr. Washburn said: "I believe that Charles S. Mellen of the New Haven walked into the Governor's office and laid the substance of the bill now before the House, saying 'That is what we want.'

"I urge the House to look into the motives which may have prompted the Governor to back this bill. I suggest they might be found in the fact that he is deeply interested in the textile industry and in the fact that he is a former director in the Boston & Albany road."

During his speech Mr. Washburn sarcastically repeated "And the governor is a good business man." Continuing, he said: "The only argument advanced for the bill is that the governor wants it. When Draper is lauded as a great business man, but the really great business man is the one who, by his own efforts, raises himself to a high place rather than he who is born to a high station and merely maintains himself there. There is no crisis which makes this bill necessary. The New Haven will continue to grow in friendly hands the Boston & Maine stock which it bought to hold. The adoption of the bill would but lower to the possibility that Hartman may get the Boston & Maine stock, but he certainly stands as high in public estimation as Mellen does."

During the morning Representative White of Brookline said: "James F. Jackson, former chairman of the Railroad Commission, has been mentioned as an advocate of this bill. He was hired by the New Haven to speak for and back the Merger last year. I can tell you how much he was paid."

PUTS BLAME ON WIFE.

Blaming his wife for his downfall, George Bilsky of Somerville to-day pleaded guilty to breaking into a machine shop of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and was sentenced to two-and-a-half years in the House of Correction by Judge Almy in the Cambridge Police Court. Bilsky said that his wife deserted him and would not even let him see his children. He said this affected his mind and caused him to steal.

WEST SIDE PARK, Chicago, June 14.—A cold wave struck Chicago to-day, and Boston Doves and the Cubs were compelled to hook up in the last game of their series with the temperature about that which is supposed to prevail in the late Fall. Rain followed the sunshine of yesterday and the weather was raw to-day. To-morrow is an open date, and the management considered putting the game off for a day.

Lindaman was the hope of the Doves in the game. Pfiester, the Cub left hander, was Manager Chance's first choice, with Reulbach in the role of relief pitcher.

The Doves to-day vowed they would go after the Cubs in an effort to reverse the verdict of yesterday, when they were beaten by the score of 9 to 7 in the joke ball game of the year. That game was worthy of the funny pages of any newspaper. And a faithful account would have read like a joke.

FAY WILL STAND BY THE HOLDING BILL

Representative Thomas J. Fay of Boston to-day issued a statement in which he declared that, regardless of the attitude taken against the New Haven-Draper holding bill by the Democratic State Committee at his meeting on Saturday, he favors the bill. Mr. Fay says that, while he believes that the members of the committee are sincere in their voting against the bill, he does not believe that more than two or three read the bill.

ASKS DIVORCE FROM HIS FILIPINO BRIDE

A romance of the Philippines has just come to light through the filing of divorce papers in Boston by Thomas C. Lannan of Dorchester, who asks to be freed from Ana Peres Lannan, a native teacher of Bogo, Province of Cebu, whom he married while acting as supervisor of schools in that province. They were married November 23, 1905. Lannan charges his Filipino bride with cruel and abusive treatment, and that even during their honeymoon she stayed him about the houses with a stiletto. Mr. Lannan says he was forced to leave her last November, when he returned to Boston.

DISCOVER MAN UNCONSCIOUS

Albert Kingsworth was found unconscious on the sidewalk at Washington street and Columbia road shortly before noon to-day. He was apparently suffering from injuries received by a fall or by blows. He was not able to give an account of himself and the police were unable to find any witness to the assault or accident. He was identified by the contents of his pockets. He is fifty-three years old, single, and lives at No. 7 Bulfinch place. He is employed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

At the City Hospital operations of left eye, severe cuts and contusions about the head were dressed.

MAN A SUICIDE IN NEW YORK SUBWAY

NEW YORK, June 14.—A man dashed down the steps of the One Hundred and Sixteenth street station of the subway to-day and in the presence of a crowd of passengers jumped in front of an approaching local train. He was ground to pieces and was dead by the time he was taken from beneath the train. The man, who was about thirty-five years old, bought his ticket as he went in a great hurry. He let one train approaching, and apparently did not want to miss the next, himself in front of it. There was nothing on the suicide to identify him.

EIGHT LOST AT SEA, SAVED BY TWO SHIPS

Bringing a message which gave joy to the surviving members of the crew of the fishing schooner Nettie Franklin, the schooner Rose Cabral arrived at T wharf to-day. A few moments later the flag of the Franklin, which flung at half mast for eight of her crew, was hauled to the top amid rousing cheers from both vessels.

Eight men in four dories had been lost in the fog off Highland Light by the Nettie Franklin, and she came in to T wharf yesterday after cruising about looking for them for several days. The men were Tony Gaspe, Frank Silva, John Mallard, Joachim Fregata, Domingos Ferredor, John Feijmel and Manuel Bravo.

The schooner Rose Cabral reached the wharf about 8 o'clock to-day and Captain Rouse went at once to see Captain Silva of the Franklin. He reported that he passed the fishing schooner Quonapowitt on the grounds and saw three of the Franklin's dories on her deck, which mean that six men had been picked up. The captain of the Quonapowitt shouted a message to be delivered to the Franklin, but the two vessels had drawn apart and the wind carried it the other way.

The Cabral continued on her course to Boston and shortly after sighted a coasting schooner bound down the cape. On her deck was the fourth dory of the Franklin, which meant that two more men were safe.

The men were lost about 7 p. m. last Thursday. A fog shut down suddenly over the fishing grounds and caught the Franklin unprepared. All her dories were out. She sounded her foghorn requisitly through the night and several dories reached the ship in safety. Four, however, did not come, and when the fog lifted Friday they were nowhere in sight. It was there another fishing schooner visible.

After rowing forty miles from the fishing schooner Quonapowitt that distance off Highland Light, two Portuguese fishermen from the Franklin arrived at Provincetown to-day. The men did not wish to remain on the Quonapowitt, which is off for a long trip. It took them about twelve hours to row ashore because they had wind and tide against them part of the time.

KNIVES USED AT CHRISTENING PARTY

A row at a christening Saturday night resulted in the appearance of two Italians before Judge Fenton of the Fourth Boston Court to-day charged with mutually endeavoring to kill each other. They are Tomasso Cannistro, twenty-two years old, of No. 13 Emmett street, and Joseph Sulco of No. 5,579 Washington street. Each was held in $1,000.

FLAG DAY IS OBSERVED BY ALL BOSTON

SO GENERAL throughout the country was the observation of Flag Day to-day, that the watchful men on the planet Mars, who Professor Lowell and others assure us are watching old Earth eagerly for a signal, may have thought that we were beginning to talk to them.

All over Boston and the Commonwealth the Stars and Stripes were in evidence and many a heart beat faster as, looking up from the day's business or task, one caught a glimpse of the emblems of the free.

The Elks of Boston made special preparations to observe the day, which was the 132d anniversary of the National colors. They had headquarters decorated and arranged a special program to-night in Tremont Hall, where Mrs. Francis Dunton Wood as soloist leads the Elks in singing the Star-Spangled Banner.

Flag Day is largely the work of the missionary work of the American Flag Association, which has already resulted in an observance of Old Glory's claims in most of the States.

The movement started with a demand that the National flag be displayed daily at every schoolhouse and this is now generally done.

The national flag was adopted by Congress on June 14, 1777 years ago. It was first hoisted over Fort Schuyler on August 3, 1777, and for eighteen years remained unchanged.

The plan was then adopted of adding a new star for each State admitted to the union, but no change was ever made in the seven red and six stripes emblematic of the thirteen original States.

Nearly everybody reads the AMERICAN.

HUNT FOR MISSING GIRL IN BOSTON

Police headquarters detectives are searching Boston for Beatrice Marks, the seventeen-year-old daughter of a wealthy retired clothier of New York, who, her folks fear, has been kidnapped. A telegram sent to her parents from Boston led to the effort to locate her here.

Miss Marks disappeared June 5. A telegram was received by the family that day announcing that she had been married and would write particulars. No letter came, however

MRS. S. I. LAXTON, WHO IS SUING FOR LOST AFFECTIONS

The attorney for Mrs. Sarah J. Laxton, the Lynn woman who is suing Mrs. Lilla O. Hay, her husband's secretary for $10,000 for the alienation of her husband's affections, to-day secured from Mrs. Hay's husband the admission that shortly after Mrs. Hay went to work for Dr. Laxton she left him without apparent cause and continued to work as secretary to the doctor.

The case is being tried before Judge Fessenden in the Superior Court. At the close of Friday's session Edward S. Hay, husband of the defendant, was on the stand. He testified that he and his wife went to work for Dr. Laxton in 1896, he taking medicines and his wife acting as secretary. He admitted that after a Boston office was opened his wife did not go home until late at night and sometimes not at all.

To-day he testified that shortly after the opening of the Boston office his wife left him altogether and without apparent reason. Under cross-examination he finally said that he lived at No. 56 Ocean street, Lynn. This is the same address as given by the wife of Dr. Laxton.

Mrs. Laxton charges that Mrs. Hay alienated the affection of her husband and caused him to leave her and live apart from her. All of the parties in the suit are middle aged.

Under cross-examination Mr. Hay said that he called at the Boylston street office of Dr. Laxton in 1905 and was attracted by the sound of voices in the inner office. He recognized his wife's voice and thought the other voice that of Dr. Laxton. He demanded to be admitted, but got no response.

"After a while," said the witness, "the door was opened. I went in and found my wife alone. There was an open window and a fire escape leading down to the street.

"I believe that Dr. Laxton was in that room and that he got out through the window."

Granville C. Shawn, a colored valet testified that Dr. Laxton and Mrs. Hay had connecting rooms when they occupied the Lynn offices and when they were located at Boylston street, Boston.

DURYEA IS SAVED FROM MADHOUSE

Attempted blackmail was declared to-day by Chester Bernell Duryea, who married Miss Lizzie Smith, daughter of Franklin Waldo Smith of this city, to be the cause of an attempt to commit him to an insane asylum.

Duryea is the son of General Hiram Duryea, son of a multi-millionaire stove man. In 1898 his marriage to Miss Smith was one of the smart social affairs of the Boston season. She obtained a separation from him on the ground of cruelty in 1902, and was awarded the custody of their child.

Recently Duryea has been ill in New York and in charge of a nurse, Reginald W. Claris. In the absence of other companions, the nurse asked the police to remove him to the insane ward at Bellevue Hospital. The ambulance surgeon who investigated refused to take him.

SEEK FUNDS FOR WHITE PLAGUE WAR

An appeal has been issued by the committee in charge of the reception to Lady Aberdeen, wife of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and Viceroy of that country, for funds to check the spread of tuberculosis in Ireland. In the appeal the committee in Ireland, A. Shuman is chairman, says:

"The first contribution donated to this cause was made by a young girl of Irish birth whose good example we hope may be emulated by our fellow citizens generally. Contributions to this fund may be forwarded to Kidder, Peabody & Co., 115 Devonshire street, Boston, receipt of which will be acknowledged."

Mrs. Stelle is fascinated by the Latin Quarter, and Stelle has no artistic temperament.

For Tuesday

See the descriptions below of 10 of the lots to be found in the Tunnel Bargain Basement, Tuesday. There are hundreds of others not advertised.

Watch for the lot numbers (corresponding to those given below) on the signs in the Tunnel Bargain Basement. It will pay you to do this, if you have in mind the saving of a portion of the money you usually spend for dress. This is the basis of the service the Tunnel Bargain Basement is rendering the Boston Public, and is one of the reasons for our saying "Walk Through the Tunnel Bargain Basement."

There are lots automatically reduced every day, but they usually sell out almost as quickly as they are placed on the counters.

Lot 1450, 80 Pieces—This lot came from a manufacturer right here in Boston, and the sale is just 3.55 below what the garments would cost if bought regularly—that is a saving of 1.55 to you. House dresses in light colors.

Lot 2071, 140 Dresses—This lot was sold to us by a New York manufacturer—it was his sample line—and he closed them out at these prices because they were soiled. Mostly single pieces, one of a kind. Dresses that would ordinarily sell for from 4.50 to 16.50. You may take your pick to-morrow at 2.98.

Lot 1724, only 12 Pieces—Too small a lot to give any description—note that there are only 12 pieces probably for the first 12 customers to reach the store.

Lot 972—A New York manufacturer sold us his sample line of petticoats (just 120) which were used as samples. In black and colors. You will find that these petticoats are worth from 20% to 50% more than the prices at which they will be on sale.

Lot 672—Only a few in this lot of night gowns, bought in Asbury Park, New Jersey, at less than the regular prices. They are worth 75c—on sale Tuesday in the Tunnel Bargain Basement at 59c.

Lot 2176—A lot of 1600 new waists—bought from a New York manufacturer who sacrificed his profits—we took the entire lot. Dutch neck and Dutch collar waists, semi-tailored; also lingerie waists with lace insertions, long and ¾ sleeves. You can save 50c to 75c each on these waists.

Lot 1014—This lot is made up mostly of samples from a New York manufacturer. China silk waists, in white and black, plain effects with tucked yokes and lace trimmings, long or short sleeves. 3.00 values. Tuesday—at 2.05.

Lot 948—A lot of white petticoats, bought underprice from a New York manufacturer who wished to close out this end of his line. Embroidery and lace trimmings, wide flounces and ribbon interlacing. See these petticoats Tuesday—the savings are well worth while.

Lot 832—We bought this line of seconds from a Rhode Island mill—they are slightly imperfect, but the wearing qualities are not affected. Kaee length lace trimmed. If they did not have these defects they would sell for double the price at which they will be marked on Tuesday.

Lot 1020—Sold out to us because this importer was discontinuing these numbers. Imported black stockings in silk lisle and in lace effects, full length patterns and boot effects. On sale Tuesday in the Tunnel Bargain Basement at less than what it costs to land in this country. (The U. S. Government regulates the landed cost of these stockings, and the appraised value is more than our sale price.) See these stockings Tuesday.

Children's and Girls' Shoes and Dresses—Hundreds of bargains in these departments—many of them automatically reduced ⅛ and ⅙. See the lots on sale Tuesday in the Tunnel Bargain Basement.

Inquiry Into Mystery of Ruiz Tragedy

Millionaire Drives in Coaching Marathon While Parliament Prepares to Hold Investigation.

Dead Woman's Servants Tell of Threats to Kill Wealthy Patron in Fits of Jealousy.

LONDON, June 14.—Contrary to expectations, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who has been in strict seclusion since the exposure of a bribery plot to conceal the details of the suicide of his intimate friend, Mrs. Ruiz, emerged from his hiding place to-day and appeared in public, not only going to the horse show, but surprising everyone by driving his own entry in the Marathon event.

Not only did he drive, but he won the feature of the day's card, the ten-mile race for coaches over a course from Hampton court to the horse show grounds.

The lack of enthusiasm displayed over the winner bears out the belief that King Edward has stepped his disapproval upon the young American millionaire. It is certain that the King's ban has fallen and in appearing at the horse show to-day Mr. Vanderbilt has defied the pleasure of the court of St. James.

May Go to Paris.

The King's stand is firm, and while Mr. Vanderbilt has never gone in for society in its strict definition ever here, preferring the sons of gilt-edged Bohemia, he will certainly feel the effect of ostracism. Those who are familiar with his pranks in New York predict that now, with London looking askance upon him he will soon find himself a member of the American colony in Paris where one's liberties of action are not so severely criticised.

"It is virtually "by command" of His Majesty that social London will exile the young American. The King, when he visited the horse show, omitted to send for Vanderbilt, while warmly complimenting all other American exhibitors.

Following the King's command, London, using the term in its best application, soon decided that the young man would best be left to himself and to the ample crowd of satellites and parasites with whom he consorts.

Mr. Vanderbilt "Not at Home."

All efforts to find Mr. Vanderbilt both to-day and yesterday failed. He was sought diligently, with the result that after giving him, in all fair play, an opportunity to make a statement or some sort of reply to the ugly stories in connection with the Ruiz case.

At Gloucester House in Park Lane, where Mr. Vanderbilt occupies apartments, it was announced with all the positiveness of a British servant that "Mr. Vanderbilt is not at home." Although it was certain that he was in the flat, and with him were Mrs. Ware, an English lawyer, and his secretary, subsequent inquiries elicited only the answer:

"Mr. Vanderbilt has nothing to say, nor has Mr. Ware."

Parliament to Act.

As cabled to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN the alleged plot to hush up the details of Mrs. Ruiz's suicide by bribery will be made the subject of government inquiry. It is likely that Parliament will take up the subject at the session this evening. The Home Secretary will be asked if the Crown is justified in withholding from the press permission to examine depositions taken at the inquest of Mrs. Ruiz's body.

Coroner Danford Thomas, who conducted the inquest into Mrs. Ruiz's death at which the verdict was "suicide while of unsound mind," is still denying himself to visitors on the plea that he is ill.

His deputy, Mr. Schroeder, positively refuses to let a representative of any newspaper read the sworn depositions made at the inquest by Charles F. Williamson of Paris, who has acted throughout as agent of Mrs. Ruiz; Miss Elizabeth Casey, Mrs. Ruiz's companion since last January; Dr. J. S. Sutton, who was called to the woman immediately after she shot herself, and the private hospital nurse and the servants.

"I refuse you," said Schroeder discourteously, "because I want to prove to you newspaper men that you cannot worry us coroners after you fail to take the opportunity and get a report of the inquest at the proper time; while it is going on."

Hush Money Is Lavished.

The fact is that the London newspapers habitually leave inquests to be covered by news agencies or by "free lance" reporters who attend them on the chance that they will be worth writing about.

So Schroeder's answer was far from convincing. He added that the newspapers already know all about the inquest that is worth knowing and denied that Mr. Vanderbilt's name even was mentioned by the dying woman or by any witness at the inquest.

Whoever bribed the two "free lance" reporters who were at the inquest not to write about it, whether or not the bribers were Mr. Vanderbilt's agents, has done nothing illegal, for the reporters have no official responsibility. Rumor has it that each reporter received $1,500 to remain silent and that money was lavished everywhere to keep secret the suicide.

Indeed, it is said that it was the prodigal way in which hush money was scattered that first attracted attention to a case which otherwise might have been passed by as the suicide of an obscure person.

Former Husband Skeptical.

A startling development in the mysterious case came in dispatches from Paris in which Mrs. Ruiz's former husband, Antonio Ruiz, a Cuban diplomat, was quoted as saying he was inclined to doubt the whole story of her having killed herself in London.

"I do not know whether the woman who shot herself is my former wife," Senor Ruiz declared. "This is the second time she has directed her death has been reported to me.

"A woman now in Paris, who says she knows "the" Mrs. Ruiz well, says she saw her with Mr. Vanderbilt in the restaurant of Claridge's Hotel, London, since the beginning of June, more than a fortnight after a Mrs. Ruiz killed herself in London.

"A former employe of Mrs. Ruiz is quoted as saying that the woman had attempted to commit suicide on two occasions in New York by taking morphine. One of the attempts, the informant said, "was in the presence of a young millionaire, who is known to have been an admirer of Mrs. Ruiz."

Mrs. Ruiz had been seen with her friend had been seen in an automobile with another girl. She flew into a rage, followed by a fit of hysterical weeping and swallowed morphine tablets and fell unconscious. She was ill for a long time afterward.

The same servant who relates this story, also says that Mrs. Ruiz also threatened to kill Alfred Vanderbilt. She is said to have made this threat about a year ago, in the presence of her servants in her apartment at No. 5066 Lexington avenue. To her servants she declared:

"I'll shoot him if he doesn't do what I want him to do."

Error of Vanderbilt, Sr.

On account of the English connections of the Vanderbilt family, the Ruiz affair has created almost as much attention on this side of the water as it has in America. Everywhere the matter is discussed. It is recalled how Cornelius Vanderbilt, father of the young man now occupying the spotlight of notoriety, discriminated in favor of Alfred Gwynne against his eldest son, Cornelius.

The younger Cornelius gave offence by marrying Miss Grace Wilson of New York against the will of his father. The chief objection, it has always been understood over here, was that the bride was a few years older than the bridegroom. In addition to this, young Cornelius had given some indications of wildness when in college.

As punishment, he was cut off in his father's will and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was made the preferred heir and so became head of the family.

Just how the judgment of the elder Vanderbilt went away in well known in the United States, where the disinherited son is living quietly and happily, doing things in the social world, while the favored son has shocked society more than once on both sides of the water by his reckless mode of living.

The story of the two Vanderbilt sons is material for a novel or a melodrama.

CARUSO ONLY TIRED; COMING TO AMERICA

MILAN, June 14.—Caruso insists that all alarming reports regarding the failure of his voice—a gold mine of melody—are not supported by facts. He is greatly worrying up over charges which seem to believe they are the work of enemies. He denies he's a "dead one."

Walking up while denouncing the reports he said:

"Why, I have even been suspected of getting drunk—I, Caruso, who drink only water, and when I am not singing go to bed at 9 o'clock. My only illness is one that all artists—mean artists of any stamp—are thoroughly familiar with. It is fatigue, that's all. I am tired enough to need a month or so of rest.

"I give out all I can. From start to finish I throw myself into my role, the responsibility of my reputation, and it is a constant nervous strain. After a big performance I am 'all in'—yes, that is the Western phrase which expresses it. You know we have the operatic parlance, what we call 'soup'—an easy slurring over of the difficult passages. Well, I never could, and never can, give the public 'soap.' I have been advised to try it, for my own relief, but it is no use. I must sing at full pressure, or not at all. I overdid it at the outset the past season. The rest before I had, in Monte Carlo alone, 116 times.

"This year only forty times. I could have sung more, but it might have been at the risk of having a two years' rest prescribed for me later on."

"I shall sing in Berlin, in concert, in August. And I shall sing in opera in Germany, and at Monte Carlo, before returning to America.

"I paid a few minutes' visit to a specialist who is a friend of mine, and now they say I am frequenting a clinical hospital! But, what matter. Suppose I sing or not —am I not my own master? No sooner does a young tenor pop up, like that Caruso in London, than you journalists proclaim, 'Caruso has been eclipsed.'

CHARGE 'HUSH FUND' PLOT IN BUSINESS CASE

Charles S. Stuart, one of the nine defendants in the "business dinner" case which is being tried before Judge Bond in the Superior Court, took the stand in his own behalf this morning. Stuart, with Howard M. Faust, one of the defendants who has turned State's evidence, with proposing a fund to settle the case after the indictments had been made. Faust has previously accused Stuart of making this proposition. Stuart was questioned by Attorney Porter.

Q.—Did you ask H. M. Faust to contribute $5000 to a fund to be used for the purpose of settling the cases through the influence of attorney Curtis?

Faust told me that the matter had already been properly taken up for $5000.

Cross-examined by Assistant District-Attorney Curtis.

Q.—Do you keep any books or accounts of your business? A.—A check book and no books.

Q.—Any others? A.—No.

Q.—Did you pay Faust $200? A.—Yes, he cashed a check for me.

Q.—Where the check came back unpaid because you had overdrawn your account and you made good to Faust? A.—Yes.

Witness denied knowing anything about papers being left a blank in favor of Faust at Walpole which it is claimed were later filled in by street cars. He said practically all his customers were satisfied with their dealings with him.

Q.—You were surprised when people came into court and made claims? A.—I was.

Q.—Do you recall any instances of Simpson, Crawford and Sweetser ever paying notes they had given as security? A.—I cannot.

Q.—Have you ever tried to collect any of these notes by civil suit? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever employ an attorney named Eyges? A.—Yes. He collected a bill for me.

A number of lawyers testified to Henry A. Eyges's reputation for veracity.

Eyges in his own behalf testified that Stuart had consulted him in the various proceedings in four cases. Acting for the best interests of his client, he had brought suit in those cases, he said.

MRS. GOULD HEARS LETTERS READ IN COURT

to show that she had bought the Blue Gap farm to found a home for poor boys.

Some Wardrobe Figures.

The allowance given by Mr. Gould to his wife were sent gone over again. She said she changed her gowns three times a day at Ormond. Then she went into the demand of society in the line of gowns. She gave on the following schedule of the prices she paid:

Day gowns, Castle Gould.....	$75 to $150
Morning gowns.....	100
Dinner gowns, New York.....	250 to 500
Tea gowns.....	300 to 600
Reception gowns.....	250 to 500
Yachting gowns.....	100 to 150
Hats to suit.....	40 to 80

She paid $29 a day at the Hotel Belmont, she said, and her living expenses were $300 a week. An automobile cost her $500 a month.

$900 a Month for Servants.

The wages of the servants were gone into in detail, the witness finally giving the monthly payroll at $900.

Immediately upon the resumption of the session Mrs. Gould reascended the witness stand, and her cross-examination by Attorney Nicoll, counsel for her husband, was continued.

Q.—When were you last at the Blue Gap farm? A.—I have just come from there. That is, I came from there at the commencement of this trial.

Q.—Have you paid up in full for the farm? A.—No, there is still a mortgage on it, and I also owe $22,000 on bonds.

Q.—After the accident in the automobile with Mr. Farnum in September, 1906, did you get back to the St. Regis in the same automobile? A.—No, in another one.

Q.—How long did Mr. Farnum remain in your apartments at the St. Regis that time? A.—About one and a half hours.

From Virginia to Seashore.

Mr. Nicoll then took Mrs. Gould to the period of her visit to Lynchburg, Va., on November 17, 18 and 19, 1906. Farnum was at that time also stopping at the Carroll House, she said. A maid, Anna Conway, was with her.

Next Mr. Nicoll took her back to her visit to the Marlborough-Blenheim at Atlantic City. This was with a party. Farnum was one of the party. This was on a Sunday. They had gone there from the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia. Mr. Nicoll showed Mrs. Gould a time print plan of the Marlborough-Blenheim and asked her to identify the rooms she and her party occupied. She said she could not make out clearly the numbers of the rooms.

Q.—Assuming that this was your suite indicating a place on the map which was your room? A.—I can't measure.

Q.—But you are supposed to assume?

A.—Oh, am I? Well, then I can't tell.

Q.—Which room did Mr. Farnum occupy? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Which room did Miss May Robson occupy? A.—I really don't know. I'd like to tell, but I can't.

Q.—How many beds were there in your room?

Nicoll on New Tack.

Here Mr. Sheean objected and Mr. Nicoll took a new tack.

Q.—You testified about an interview you had with Mr. Sells in the Summer of 1906? A.—Yes.

Mrs. Gould said she had not read the affidavit which Mr. Sells made concerning that interview.

"I'll read it to you?" said Mr. Nicoll. He then read that Mr. Sells had testified that Mr. Gould had requested him to see Mrs. Gould and try to bring about a reconciliation. There were three or four conditions which Mr. Gould proposed. One was, Mr. Sells said, that Mrs. Gould was to cease to have the management of Castle Gould, another was that she was to abstain wholly from the use of intoxicants. Mrs. Gould said she did not understand that she was to relinquish her management of the estate.

"As regard to the second conditions," said Mrs. Gould, "I understood that I was to sign a paper in regard to the intoxicants."

Cease Humiliating Husband.

The third and fourth conditions, as set forth in Mr. Sells's affidavit, were that Mrs. Gould should cease humiliating her husband in the presence of others and that there should be no "undue pleas" on the grounds of Mrs. Gould's personal expenditures. Mrs. Gould said she did not recall what answer she made.

Q.—Didn't Mr. Sells tell you that if you would agree to these conditions it would be glad to have you join on the yacht Nigrar? A.—Not that I recall, but he may have.

Q.—Now answer the question?

Justice Dowling directed Mrs. Gould to answer to the point. She said she could not recall what her terms to Mr. Sells were.

A letter dated in January, 1907, from Mrs. Gould to her husband, addressed him as "Dear Howard," was introduced. It referred to a bill rendered by a London Hotel and paid by Mr. Gould through Langham. The letter concluded, "Yours affectionately, Katherine."

GIRL MISSING 6 DAYS; POLICE ARE BAFFLED

At the request of her distracted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pillsbury of No. 208 West Newton street, the police of Greater Boston are searching for Ina Victoria Pillsbury, aged sixteen, who mysteriously disappeared from her home last Tuesday.

The missing girl was a pupil at the Girl's High School, West Newton street. She came home from school on Tuesday afternoon at 2:10. Twenty minutes later she left the house and has not been seen since.

Her heart-broken parents have not the slightest idea where their child is, and her only companion, Annie McCusker, a cousin, twelve years old, is sick in bed as the result of worry over Ina's disappearance.

When she went away she wore neither hat nor coat, being simply attired in her school clothes—a white waist and skirt, black shoes and stockings.

The girl is 5 feet 2 inches in height, weighs about 113 pounds, is of dark complexion, has a dimple in her left cheek caused by an abscessed tooth, and has two teeth filled with gold.

What deepens the mystery is that on Wednesday the father got a letter from her postmarked at West Lynn, telling him not to worry and that she "was all right." It was in the girl's own handwriting.

The missing girl was brought up in the strictest manner, and the parents scout all suggestion of any male influences which would lead to her leaving home. The girl is a graduate of the Brown Grammar School of Somerville, where the family lived at No. 85 Rogers avenue up to a year ago.

BOER WAR VETERANS, GUILTY, ASK CHANCE

James Hansen, a veteran of the Boer war, and his companion, Hiram Sutcliffe, both under thirty, to-day pleaded guilty to the theft of copper from a Watertown factory, and asked to be given a chance to redeem themselves. Hansen said that he stole because he had not eaten for four days. His companion asked that he be sent to a reformatory where he could learn the machinists' trade. Judge Lawton took the cases under advisement.

NEW YORK CRIMS TO "LEPER" EARLY

NEW YORK, June 14.—If John B. Early, the alleged leper now in quarantine in Washington, D. C., chooses to come to this city for treatment he may do so without objection on the part of the New York City Board of Health. So said Dr. Thomas Darlington, president of the Board of Health, to-day. A news dispatch from Washington said that Early would have to remain in Washington unless the New York authorities indicated a willingness to permit him to enter New York.

HELEN HALE IS BRIDE OF THE 'MAN FROM HOME'

Helen Hale, now Mrs. William Hodge.

"Well if that wasn't just like Helen Hale!"

Hundreds of that dainty little actress' friends in Boston are making that exclamation, or something like it, to-day. Miss Hale, all the time protesting that she never, never meant to marry at all, was actually making arrangements with the minister! The cute little minx!

And the man. Who is the lucky chap? William Hodge, star in "The Man from Home" is the winner. The concluding chapter of their romance was written by the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, at his home No. 131 West 105th street, in New York, yesterday.

None but the parents of the bride and a couple of friends were there. A week ago Miss Hale came from Europe, and when Mr. Hodge not only met her at the pier, but gave her a great big kiss a few steps to detect the direction of the wind. Still that very afternoon she was seen at her home in regard to some matrimonial rumor which had a young millionaire as the man, but she indignantly denied all knowledge.

Mr. Frohman says I may some day have my name in big electric letters on Broadway. Who'd ever give all that up for a mere man?" she said laughing.

Miss Hale played her first part in "The Prince of Pilsen." She then played in "The Patriot" and "Peggy from Paris." She is twenty-six years old and an alumna of Wellesley. The Hodges have New York for a motor car trip through New England. They were at Bridgeport last night.

LID ON KISSES IS TAKEN OFF IN PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, June 13.—When it comes to kissing, Pittsburg now is a wide open town. The lid was taken off by Superintendent Thomas A. McQuaide. He thinks that if any fellow can kiss a girl, in public or in private, it is his duty to do it. Free trade and reciprocity in the kissing line is the policy of the McQuaide administration.

"Let them kiss their heads off and give them plenty of room in which to do it," the superintendent said to-day in an order issued to the police force. "How can a fellow court a girl if he can't kiss her? Courtship without kisses is like rhubarb pie without sugar. I'll suspend any policeman who arrests any man or woman who is guilty of nothing more serious than kissing.

"I don't care whether the kissing is done in the parks or out of the parks. Instead of arresting these young folk, put more benches in the park and increase the accommodations. Deal with this question from an entirely human point of view. If a fellow wants to take his best girl to the park and there give to her a little squeeze and a few kisses, why, it is more power to both of them, I say. I'm their friend.

"Down with the calamity howler who looks upon the soul kiss as a germ breeder. My platform is more lights, more benches and more kissing in the parks. I believe that platform is a winner. The folk who howl against kissing are in the sad minority. Give me the kissers in this community, and I will guarantee to carry precinct against any anti-kissing ticket first time it runs. Put it down to me that kissers in this country, and there won't be a doubtful State. I'll have them all in the Electoral College will be unanimous for Thomas A. McQuaide."

McQuaide thinks more harm is done by forcing young couples to seek secluded places in which to kiss than by permitting them to kiss in the open. He thinks it outrageous that in years gone by young folk have been arrested and locked up for kissing and hugging in the parks.

"I'm going to make our parks popular," McQuaide concluded. "And from this time on I'm the guardian angel of the kissers. If a girl comes to me and tells me her fellow won't kiss her he'd better look out. There is such a thing as an inquisitive lunatico."

Great Rush to Enter List of 'Big 29'

Tour Candidates Seek Honor Roll

Wonderful Opportunity Offered Boys and Girls in Great Travel Contest.

POLLS CLOSE WEDNESDAY

Now for that last roll of honor. Only 3 days remain in which to enter that list. The polls will close on Wednesday at 6 p. m. to permit the preparation of the list. If you want to enter that list of eligibles, get busy to-day. Get busy with your subscriptions. Get busy with your friends. Get busy with everybody you know. Above all—get busy and keep busy.

MORE subscriptions! What a perfect avalanche of them there has begun at the Area and the World department of the BOSTON AMERICAN. They are coming from all sides, all in preparation for the last roll of honor, which will be printed on next Sunday.

The readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN have picked their favorites. Some of them are picking their favorites to-day. Each and every reader is anxious to help some deserving boy or girl, and a great fight is now raging for one of the magnificent world tour prizes, offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Time for Action.

This is the time for action. Only three days of voting remain, before the polls close temporarily for the publication of the standing next Sunday. The polls will close at 6 p. m. Wednesday, in preparation for that list—the last list that will be published before the winners are finally announced.

Have you done your share to make your mark in that final standing? Haven't you found some acquaintance in that list of boys and girls who are trying to help themselves along in life by winning one of these tours?

If you have not, why not? You can help the son or daughter of one of your friends, or help one of your acquaintances get a start along the right path in life. Give them a start up the ladder that they could not get in any other way. You can do it enormous help to them, by subscribing to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Three tour candidates and famous castle the winners will see.

Important to Reach "29."

It means much to every contestant to be in the list of the "big 29"—in the roll of honor. If you want them to get into that list, now is the time to help them. Now is the time to interest yourself, interest your friends, and subscribe. All paid-in-advance subscriptions have a vote value ranging between 2,500 and 100,000. You will not take many of these rearly subscriptions to put any contestant in a most commanding position.

Everyone of those friends and relatives of the contestants have something at stake in the contest themselves. Each of the winners of the fifty-eight tours offered has the privilege of escorting his or her own escort as chaperone. Undoubtedly they will pick some member of their family, their school teacher, some friend who has helped them in the fight for one of these prizes.

If the candidates intend to make any spurt at all, now is the time to make that spurt. Now is the time to put in the highest work. Now is the time to prove their mettle, to prove their calibre.

Less Than Two Weeks Left.

Less than two weeks remain of voting, but they are the most important days in the great contest. Every subscription, every vote counts. Candidates should bring in every subscription that they possibly can by Wednesday, 6 p. m. The last few days in the last roll of honor will have a tremendous influence upon the final position in the race, after all the votes are counted on June 26th. Every vote must be kept in mind.

The winners of these trips will have been given a start, a good start towards SUCCESS. They will be lifted above the little ones. When they return from the vacation tours, they will have greatly changed. They will be different. They will return little men and women. They will keep on struggling, striving, achieving, when they come back, just as they did on the trip, and in the contest, which resulted in their winning. And the boys that go racing around the world, they will be heard from—see if they aren't.

Everyone of those boys and girls on the list has made some kind of a start, has shown the same kind of ambition that animates the boys and girls at the head of the list.

Aren't there boys and girls on the list that will FIGHT for such an opportunity as the tours offer? Here is the time to fight.

There are only twelve days more of the contest—for it ends on the TWENTY-SIXTH day of JUNE.

June 26th, the last of the votes will be polled, then the voting will stop, ballots will be counted and the winners will be announced.

58 Prizes In All.

The four boys at the top of the list will be the boys that will represent New England and the BOSTON AMERICAN in a great race around the world with boys from New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles will take part. It will be the Marathon of the century, and the eyes of all the world will be on the youthful racers.

The four girls at the top of the list will tour Europe, and the twenty-five boys and twenty-five girls that are next in the standing will go on slight-seeing trips to New York, Washington and Niagara Falls.

What do YOU think of it, you candidate? You, Mr. Father, if your boy or girl is working?

Many a race is won in the stretch, most of you know that. Here is the stretch run of the race Around the World Contest. NOW is the time to work. If you are going to work at all.

No matter how hard you are plugging, no matter how hard you are hustling, the others may be hustling and plugging, too. Therefore it behooves you to put your best foot forward and to work hard ALL the time. You cannot work too hard, you cannot get too many subscriptions, for there is absolutely no way of telling what your antious rivals will do.

What's the Use of Fighting

If You Can't Fight all the Time

That's the idea exactly. We would not have dared to tackle the big Piano Trust if we thought of quitting at any stage of the game. My! How the Trust did brag about putting us out of the business. But that was years ago. We've been fighting ever since, and while fun we have had cutting and double cutting and scalping and slashing at Trust Pianos. Once when a particularly scrappy member of the Trust was fighting us for a customer who wanted to buy said scrappy member's particular pet piano, we gave the customer the piano and paid the cartage to boot. It cost us a pretty penny of money to indulge in this sort of a battle, but what's the use of fighting if you can't fight all the time? Don't start anything that you can't finish. Some fine day we're going to finish the Trust, and then you'll see the prices of pianos down where they belong—where we've had them for years. Come up this week and get a swell bargain in any of the best makes while the fur is flying. We beauties will be put on the sacrifice floor.

$5 Down--$1 a Week

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little—go up where the rents are not so high and do your piano right.

"AMERICAN" READERS AT WONDERLAND

The fine warm weather of the last few days has given Summer park business a decided impetus, as evidenced by the increased crowds at Wonderland, where, for two days everything has been running to capacity.

The new production of "The Prophet and the Princess," a becoming adaptation of Salome, depicting the death of John the Baptist and including the "dance of the veils" by the princess for the edification of King Herod is an unusual and of such historic and dramatic strength as to call for favorable comment upon all sides.

The new presentations of the Golden Graces is deemed unexcelled from an artistic and spectacular viewpoint. Meanwhile the new vaudeville acts and newly constructed minstrel show are receiving generous patronage.

The park illumination ticket, giving ten shows and park admission for 50 cents, includes all the big rides enjoyable on a hot day. The Park Danny House and moving picture show continues to attract big crowds. The photograph and painters' studious, restaurant, ballroom and Japanese village are satisfying patrons beyond criticism, so that all told, Wonderland is in the best shape of its career.

To-day and to-morrow SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets are being used by Boston AMERICAN readers for free park enjoyment. They are fourteen in number, with free admission and free vaudeville, while the 10-cent attractions are visited for a coupon and 5 cents and the 25-cent shows yield two admissions for a ticket and a nickel.

A new set of free tickets for next Sunday will be announced the week in the AMERICAN. Watch the announcements and order the AMERICAN for next Sunday to obtain the free tickets.

TO HUNT AFRICAN GAME IN BALLOONS

CHICAGO, June 14.—Hunting wild beasts from balloons in darkest Africa is the experiment to be made by W. N. Boyce, a Chicago publisher, who expects to leave September 1 and be gone a year or more. He has made a special study of air flying and of the geography of British East Africa, in which Mombasa, Nairobi and other points visited by former President Roosevelt are situated.

"I will devote as much attention to taking pictures with kinematograph as to shooting game," said Mr. Boyce. "Pictures of the wild beasts from balloons have been made because of the dense jungles. I expect to overcome this by the use of balloons."

LAND SLAVONIA'S PASSENGERS TO-DAY

"101 RANCH" INDIANS IN BIG PARADE

The Miller Brothers big "101 Ranch" show came to town to-day and gave a wild-west street parade which made multitudes stare. It is a novel sight to see cowboys and Indians riding through Boston streets, not to mention Mexican cattlemen and other denizens of the illimitable plains.

The show begins its Boston performances at the Boston College athletic grounds in Massachusetts avenue to-day, and it was from this point the parade started. It led for its route from Massachusetts avenue to Washington and Dover streets, Harrison avenue, Essex, Lincoln, Summer, High, Federal, Mills streets, Postoffice square, Congress, State, Court, Park, Tremont and Boylston streets to Columbus avenue, where it turned into Massachusetts avenue and theres proceeded back to the grounds.

Both Joe Miller and Zack T. Miller were in the procession. Joe rode in a carriage with two Indian kids, a boy and girl, and Zack was astride an Arabian stallion which is said to have cost $10,000. Zack wore a magnificent sombrero, a bead-fringed shirt, "chaps" and spurs, were marvels and silver-chased spurs. George Miller was also in the line of march.

There were Sioux, Cheyenne and Osage redmen in the band, and also a Cossacks from far off Russia, who are among the best horsemen in the world. One of the features that pleased the crowds most was the cowgirls. Miss Maude Miller was among them. She wore a fetching lavender waist. All the girls rode astride, and one of them, garbed in buckskin, had a seat like a cowboy. Squaws, papooses and Indian maidens added to the picturesque of the spectacle.

NEW ATTEMPT TO FLOAT THE YANKEE

NEW BEDFORD, June 14.—The United States cruiser Yankee, which lies at the bottom of Nonquitt in forty-two fathoms of water, will be raised within a week, according to the engineers of the Arnoldix Company. She has been on the bottom since December 4, when Arnoldix people have been working on her six months. The attempt will be made Monday of next week to float the Yankee with the aid of lighters. The Yankee was brought to the surface from her position off the Hen and Chickens on December 4 by the Arnoldix Company, but she was so buoyant that she became unmanageable, and, being caught in a storm the same day, sank again.

To Housewives Who Buy Condensed Milk

Condensed milk is wasteful. It is sweet and unnatural. It has but limited use. Please let us explain why Van Camp's Milk is better.

There are thousands of people who think that condensed milk is very much like Van Camp's.

They are buying condensed milk for part of their uses, and milkman's milk for the rest.

So we ask you to spare this space, in our mutual interest, to explain where the difference lies.

Condensed Milk is Nearly Half Sugar

A can of condensed milk is about half milk and half sugar.

The sugar is added—from 40 to 50 per cent—both to cheapen and preserve it.

In the old days, before the sterilization of milk was perfected, sugar was added to keep the milk sweet.

And many people still cling to this sweetened milk because they don't know how evaporated milk has displaced it.

Van Camp's is Pure Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated.

There is no sugar in it, no starch, no preservative—nothing whatever but milk.

We have evaporating plants in six states, all located close to our dairies.

The fresh milk from the cows is poured into receptacles. Then the air is pumped out, leaving the milk in a vacuum.

Because of that vacuum, a very moderate heat sets the milk boiling, and evaporates the water in steam.

Thus we evaporate two-thirds of the water to reduce the bulk. It is that economy in shipping which makes Van Camp's cost even less than raw milk.

28 Per Cent Solids

This evaporated milk is 28 per cent solids—8 per cent butter fat.

Such is the milk that we put into the cans, and the milk that you get in Van Camp's.

Then the can is sterilized after the can is sealed. That's the only thing we do to preserve it.

When you open the can, and replace the water, you have whole rich milk without any subtraction or any addition, save a slight almond flavor due to sterilization.

Paying a Double Price for Sugar

Condensed milk may be also evaporated. But each can contains about as much sugar as milk.

Let us figure out what this means.

The large can of Van Camp's contains sixteen ounces of evaporated milk. That means a full pint—a full pound.

If you buy Van Camp's by the case, and replace the water which we took out, you get a rich milk at about six cents per quart.

The 10-cent cans of condensed milk contain only 12 ounces—four ounces less than Van Camp's. And they contain condensed milk of sugar, for which you are paying more than twice what sugar is worth.

Unfit for Cooking

That sugar in condensed milk makes it unfit for cooking. Only table uses.

Van Camp's on the table serves the same purpose, and it goes twice as far because it contains twice the milk.

And Van Camp's gives you for cooking the whole rich milk—the finest milk in America.

Please note what this means.

When you use raw milk for cooking you don't get the whole milk, nature's milk separates. The butter fat rises and the solids fall.

In Van Camp's you get all the butter fat, all the solids that exist in the richest milk.

Thus it gives to milk dishes a richness and flavor which you never can get from raw milk.

You lose all this in condensed milk.

Use Only One Milk

You have no need for the milkman when you use Van Camp's. It gives you pure milk for your table and rich milk for your cooking.

It is cheaper than raw milk, because you save the cost of daily delivery.

It is economical because there is no waste. It is convenient for you have it always on hand.

If you prove these facts, you who use condensed milk will gladly change to Van Camp's.

Van Camp's Milk is sold in 5 and 10-cent cans—at your grocer's. We recommend the 10-cent cans because in them you get more for your money than you get in the 5-cent cans. The 10-cent cans contain 16 ounces and the 5-cent cans contain only 6 ounces. It is put up at our dairies in six states by the Van Camp Packing Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Steel was in good demand for New York account and rose to 69⅛, which is near its top price record. London was reported to have purchased 20,000 shares of Steel common in New York.

STEEL AGAIN HIGHEST EVER

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Steel common sold at the highest price in its history during the early trading in Wall Street today. On heavy transactions it rose 1¼ points to 69⅛. The preferred was only fractionally higher and speculation in it was light. A new high record was made by Wabash preferred at the opening of the session, when it sold at 51¾, a net gain of 1¼ points. In connection with its strength it was rumored that the Canadian Pacific had secured control of the property. The Hartiman shares were firm, Union Pacific being a fraction higher, while Southern Pacific sold steady at 32¼.

A feature of the early trading was the sale of 12,000 shares of Union Pacific in one lot at 193¾. This means that the amount of money involved in this transaction in round numbers is $2,223,000, and is one of the largest transactions ever put through on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

In London American shares were strong with the steel issues, and Hartiman stocks the centre of trading in the American department.

On the New York curb market Miami declined ½ a point during the early part of the session. Other coppers were steady, as were the dividend paying silver shares.

AN HONEST MAN

GETS DIOGENES INTO TROUBLE AGAIN.

WALL STREET NEWS FOR THE INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, June 14.—War in Europe is the scarecrow with which professionals are now trying to frighten people out of their stocks in Wall Street. This talk is having exactly the opposite effect. Europeans are beginning to take themselves seriously in their preparations for battle, and the moneyed interests of Germany, France and England are taking on more and more of American investments, letting go their European bonds. If Europe goes to battle, America will have to furnish the food and ammunition. War in Europe would be a tremendous bull argument on stocks in the United States after the first scare broke.

But no intelligent person really expects a general war among the powers of Europe. One reason for not expecting it is that all are thoroughly prepared to fight. Another is that there is no cause for war. It is possible that there may be some bluffing, but the most probable reason for the excitement is that a public excuse is wanted for making a partition of Turkey. Viewing the matter in the worst light possible, it cannot hurt stocks in the United States more than for a few months, for if Europe were to relapse into barbarism it will leave the United States the only enlightened nation and promote civilization on this continent at an amazing speed.

Revival of the steel industry is no longer a matter of conjecture. Tne orders are actually in the books, or are sure to be there within a few weeks. The capacity of the great companies has been increased materially since the last boom, and the on-coming boom will be the greatest ever known. The only uncertainty anywhere seems to be in regard to the attitude of the public toward the stock market. The public is skeptical and the last two weeks has been selling stocks quietly. The foremost financiers have not been selling and are prepared to buy heavily should any reaction take place in the market. The big people are acting with the fixed conviction that the stock market has not by any means discounted the prosperity that is about to overwhelm all industries.

In higher speculative circles there are quiet discussions of the possibility of a campaign in the shares of the Pennsylvania Railway, to begin in the next month or two, if general conditions should be propitious for the movement. The plan seems to be based vaguely on the fact that the company will soon demonstrate, in a broader and larger way, its freight traffic potentiality by its increased facilities along the North River front, in Jersey City.

It is the option of railway men that this enlarged terminal will be used by all the Southern roads and many of the Western. The opening of the passenger station on Manhattan Island, later, is also considered.

Speculators wonder that the $214,604,200 Pennsylvania certificates are relatively neglected. Although the list of stockholders is next in size to that of the United States Steel Corporation, pronounced activity in the stock has been rare in the last three years. Though long, the roster is confined very largely to investors in the State of Pennsylvania. The character and residence of the seventeen directors may, in a measure, account for the non-speculative nature of the stock. Of these seventeen, sixteen are Philadelphians, the exception being H. C. Frick of Pittsburg.

The latter is the only financial factor of telling importance in the stock market, in the company. There is no Harriman, no Morgan, no Hill in the organization to give to the corporate vitality possessed by such properties as the Union Pacific, the Northern Pacific and some of the Morgan roads. Frick, however, is expected to supply the impetus for the movement.

American capitalists realize that, owing to the activity of the Orientals, there is going to be a greater demand for silver. Some of the leading interests among the silver producers look for an advance of ten cents an ounce in silver metal in the next year. This will mean millions of additional profit to the copper mining companies as well as to the silver producers. Such concerns as the American Smelting and the Amalgamated will benefit very largely from this improved condition of one of their important by-products.

The copper metal situation is also very much improved. The sales for May were large, and the production is increasing at such a rate as to make cheap copper a certainty for a long period of years. This means that many industries now using galvanized iron and other metals as substitutes for copper will return to that metal. New processes have been introduced in the manufacture of copper, so that the lower prices will mean about as much profit to the producers as the old prices meant.

$ $ $

Trade indications continue satisfactory. Figures of bank clearings tend to increase slowly, and neither the continued delay in the tariff matter, nor the moderate showing of the government crop report have disturbed the movement towards greater volume. Railroad earnings in particular continue to show increase, and this at a time of year when handlers of freight are very well contented if the advance in the Spring is reasonably maintained without increase until the crop moving period sets in.

$ $ $

The debate on the tariff in the Senate continues to exhaust the national patience, even if it tickles the national sense of humor. Our Senators are simply washing their individual breaches of faith, and as a huge number of them have thrown the pledges of 1908 into the waste paper basket, this necessarily involves an interminable succession of five-hour explanations which of course do not explain. There is some theorizing on the probable date for final action. The effect upon business is less than might have been expected, but, with the exception of a few of the Republican insurgents, nothing of an illuminating or disinterested character has been elicited.

$ $ $

As a general proposition it should be said that the thumb tint railroads were invented for the purpose of reorganization every ten years or so by some favored banking house is now completely out of date. The experience of the unfortunate Erie, to say nothing of other voting trust propositions, is pertinent in this connection. If E. H. Harriman has done nothing else he has shown that railroad development lies along other lines.

HARVARD NOT WORRIED OVER CARNEGIE FUND

Harvard College is not disturbed by the published report that its professors are likely or lose the pension benefits of the Carnegie Foundation on account of the alleged low standard of admission of students. It was declared to-day by Secretary J. G. Hart of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences that Harvard entrance requirements are higher than any other American college.

"The last report of the Carnegie Foundation," said Secretary Hart, "showed that almost all Harvard graduates admit students on conditions—that is, the students are behind in some requirements, but they are allowed to make it up after their entrance.

Has Highest Requirements.

"There is no agreement between Harvard and the Carnegie Foundation on this matter. Harvard has never denied that it admits students in this way.

"But I want to say that Harvard has the highest requirements of any American college. The Carnegie Foundation has a system of its own which it determines the rating of colleges with reference to scholarship. Each rating is determined by the entrance requirements. Harvard is rated at sixteen units, the highest in the list.

"We have received no notice of any contemplated action on the part of the Foundation. I know that the Foundation is getting the latest facts relative to the requirements for the admission of students with a view to getting the various colleges to agree that admissions on conditions be abolished. The object of this is, of course, to raise the standards of the various colleges.

"Harvard need not fear that she will lose the benefits to come from the Foundation for the reasons I have given you, because if Harvard loses there will be no benefit for any college."

Big Per Cent. Failure.

A recent examination of the records of the Carnegie people has shown that 68 per cent. of the Harvard students have failed to meet the requirements demanded.

These facts were made public by John G. Bowman, secretary of the Foundation. Representatives of the Foundation have examined the records of Harvard, Columbia and New York Universities and find that none of the institutions is meeting the requirements of the Foundation.

"The failure on the part of Harvard and Columbia," said Mr. Bowman, "is due not so much to the failure to demand the proper credentials from applicants for admission as to the failure of students to pass examinations. Examination by representatives of the Foundation has disclosed that 68 per cent. of the Harvard students and 57 per cent. of the Columbia students have not met the requirements. Attention has been called to the deficiencies, which no doubt will be corrected. It is the belief of the Foundation that what another examination of the records of Harvard and Columbia is made there will be little if any cause to complain."

Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, formerly president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is president of the Carnegie Foundation.

REALTY DEALS PASS FIGURES OF LAST YEAR

Both the number of transactions and the number and amount of mortgages recorded during the past week at the Suffolk Registry of Deeds far exceeded the records for the corresponding weeks of 1908 and 1907, and the indications are that the present Summer will be a big business period for the realty market.

The property is assessed on a total valuation of $11,800, of which $3,600 is on the land.

James J. Kelleher has sold to Andrew B. Porter the frame house and 7,881 square feet of land at No. 40 Bowdoin street, Dorchester, which is taxed on a total valuation of $10,000, of which $3,700 is on the land.

The same buyer has also sold to James E. Mc-Mullen a frame house and 6,000 square feet of land on Foster street, near Washington street, also in Brighton. This estate is taxed on a total valuation of $7,800, of which $1,600 is on the land.

Final papers have been passed to record in the sale of a three apartment house and 2,000 square feet of land on Johnston road, off Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, by Mary A. Dooley to Harry C. Cooper. The property is assessed for a total of $6,200, of which $1,600 is on the land.

Three thousand feet of land and a new frame house at Bridgewater have been sold by Mary Dooley to Frank W. Dorchester. The same buyer has been sold by the J. S. MacLearn corporation to Mary Dooley, a lot on Washington street, also not yet assessed.

The Brighton Farm Agency has sold for the owner, the B. C. Brown place, on the Toffontown road, Brighton, a 7-room house and 9,000 square feet of land, a seven-room cottage, a commodious barn with outbuildings, and a fine orchard and shade trees. The farm was sold to E. E. Newhall of East Boston, who already owns property adjoining.

WAGES GO UP ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

There is general rejoicing among the officers and employees of the New Haven road, the cut in salaries, which was made on April 1, 1908, having been restored. The directors unanimously voted to restore the 10 per cent. and 5 per cent. cut off the salaries of employes, the restoration to take effect July 1. The cut was made because of the financial depression. It applied only to office employes, drawing fixed salaries over $1,200 a year. Those with $1,200 and $2,000 suffered a cut of 5 per cent., and those with salaries over $2,000 to be reduced below $1,200. It provided that all receiving more than $2,000 should suffer a cut of 10 per cent., but no salary was to be cut below $2,000.

FRANCE HONORS BINNS AS HERO

NEW YORK, June 14.—The medal received by Jack Binns from the French Government for his heroism on the stricken Republic is the first of a new series of such rewards. He was chosen to head the list.

The President of France and the Chamber of Deputies decided upon the gift. It is a round silver medal, the size of a half dollar. On one side of the medal is a head of Liberty and the lettering "Republique Francaise." On the other is a French flag and an olive branch crossing an anchor. In front of this is a lifesaver, on which is inscribed "Jack Binns, 1909," and round the edge is "French Minister of Marine" and "Courage and Devotion."

The medal was sent to the French Ambassador at Washington.

WILL BUILD FIRST IRISH HALL OF FAME

Plans to erect on the Boston College grounds at Newton the first Irish hall of fame ever built are well under way and have received the hearty approbation and assistance of a number of well-known organizations and other organizations such as the Ancient Order of Hibernians. One of the most prominent and beautiful buildings of the Boston College group when completed will be the Daniel O'Connell building, dedicated to the memory of the great liberator. In one part of the building statues of famous Irishmen will be placed, with tablets recording their achievements.

FOREIGN LOAN AIDS AMERICA

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Regarding the proposed American participation in the loan on the Hankow-Szechuen Railroad, in which New York bankers are deeply interested, an official statement at the State Department declares that the "department is following this situation with great interest and looks forward with confidence to a satisfactory arrangement between the American group and the German, British and French financiers."

The statement sets forth the gratification of the government at the formation of a powerful and responsible financial group to enter the field of investment in China. The State Department, is is declared, is giving the enterprise the cordial support, which it is ever ready to give to all legitimate and beneficial commercial and financial undertakings in foreign countries. The statement continues that such undertakings are to be encouraged "because of their direct benefit to American commerce and to international relations."

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—Japan has come to California for gold, and has just bought the finest yellow ingots worth $2,250,000 from the San Francisco branch mint to buttress her reserve fund. Japan is the first foreign government to be supplied with gold from the mint in this city, the purchase is the largest contracted in California since San Francisco was a mining camp.

BIG SPANISH LINER HAULED OFF BAR

NEW YORK, June 14.—The Spanish liner Antonio Lopez, which ran aground off Point of Woods, L. I., Monday night, with more than 500 passengers aboard, has been pulled into deep water. Fred Steward of Belfast, Ire., a member of the wrecking crew, fell overboard from a barge while salvage was going on and the Lopez will probably be placed in drydock here for repairs, although she is fairly well damaged. Under her own steam she arrived off quarantine shortly after 9 last night and anchored.

BASE RUNNER CAN ADVANCE ON FOUL TIP

"After a foul hit, a man on first does not return to the base but scores on a hit on the next ball pitched. Is he out?"

This question has come up in baseball. And the solution is found under the rules that govern the game.

Rule 56, section 13, of the 1909 code of baseball playing rules declaring a base runner out, follows:

"If, when advancing bases, or forced to return to a base, while the ball is in play, he fails to touch the intervening base, or bases, if any, in the regular or reverse order, as the case may be, he may be put out by the ball being held by a fielder on any base he failed to touch, or by being touched by the ball in the hands of a fielder in the same manner as in running to first base. Provided that the base runner shall not be out in such case of the ball be delivered to the bat by the pitcher before the fielder hold it on said base or touch the base runner with it."

Ordinarily with a man on the paths, a batter, after hitting the ball, steps out of the box, to prevent the pitcher returning the ball to the plate until the runner has returned to his base.

Now, if the batter would step back into position as soon as the pitcher receives the ball, even while the runner is returning to his base, and the pitcher should delivery the ball, the runner is at liberty to run and dash for the next base.

If, with a runner half way between first and second, returning to the former base after a foul, the pitcher deliver the ball and the batter hit it, the runner may face about and streak it as fast and as far as possible, and he may not be declared out for not returning to first.

MANY GAMES POSTPONED.

There have been forty-six postponements in the American League so far this season, and the National is not far behind it, having a total of forty-one. A few of these postponements have been played off, but not many, and there are enough postponed games to be played off to insure a superabundance of double-headers for some time. This is going to bother the clubs that are crippled or which are not carrying plenty of substitutes. It is also likely to greatly benefit the aggregation that are booming smoothly along in front.

SVANBERG TO RACE TWO.

CHICAGO, June 14.—John Svanberg, who won the Derby Handicap here two weeks ago, will compete against two runners in a fifteen-mile relay race at Lagoon Square Ball Park, June 19.—Svanberg's two opponents, Thiboau and Jim Reed Cloud, will run seven and a half miles each. Swedish citizens of Chicago are promoting the event, which is to be in the nature of a testimonial to their fleet countryman. Svanberg left last night at Minneapolis defeated Johnny Hayes in a fifteen-mile race by a little over a quarter of a mile.

BILL BURNS DECIDED NOT TO BE A PRIEST

Bill Burns, the California southpaw pitcher who came to the White Sox from Washington in exchange for "Jiggs" Donohue, Nick Altrock and "Gavvy" Cravath, intended to become a priest.

That was in his more youthful days, when the control of his parents was still supreme.

But Bill became a ball player instead. Joe Cantillon, manager of the Washington Senators, knew as much and used it to reason friendship between the big left-hand pitcher and Bob Ganley, captain of the Senatorial outfit until this week.

The scene was down in the Southern training camp when Bill joined. The first man he caught sight of was Manager Cantillon. Bill walked over and shook hands.

"Well, manager," began Bill.

"Glad to see you," answered Cantillon.

"Then his gaze followed that of Burns and he saw the latter was looking at Ganley. Now, Ganley and Burns fought and had about as much affection for one another as two dogs after one bone.

"There's that——" but Cantillon stopped Burns.

"Bill, you expected to become a priest, didn't' you?" queried the leader of the Senators.

"I did," answered Bill.

"Well, I would have hated to have lived in your parish," continued the manager.

"Why?" demanded Bill.

"Well," say man that didn't agree with you would have been damned eternally. You would just have delighted in sending your enemies to the place below."

Bill was on his way.

"Where are you going?" demanded Cantillon, for there was more he would say.

"Going over to shake hands with Bob Ganley," answered the big pitcher.

Which he did. And the enmity that lost many a game for the Senators was healed by Cantillon's words.

"It's suspected that Burns will refrain from sinning at the ribs of the former captain should they meet on the field of battle—with the left-hander on the slab and the captain in the batter's box.

Manager Billy Sullivan has had Bill Burns out on the White Sox diamond for the last few days attempting to teach him the art of baundling bunts.

Burns practiced and lost his first game for the Sox and his inability to bandle the little bunt was one of the contributing elements to his downfall. When the "Red Sox" bunted, Bill's feet got tangled and on two occasions he fell to the ground. His efforts on offense were laughable. Now the manager is trying to rid him of that fault, confident that Burns will be a great pitcher if he can be taught to field his position.

Last year was Burns's first in the American League and he was looked upon as one of the coming southpaws. He has a world of speed, good curves and fine nerve.

One Team That Can Worry the Tigers

34 POSTPONED GAMES IN NATIONAL

NEW YORK, June 14.—The standing of the National League of baseball clubs given out officially for the first time this season by Acting President John Heydler was, incidentally, a weather report. It was shown that besides many postponed games which have already been played off, there remain no fewer than thirty-four games which if has not yet been possible to play on account of rain or cold weather. The eastern clubs have suffered more than the vagaries of the weather than the western organizations.

IN CHAMPIONSHIP RACE.

"Doc" Tanner has entered Fleming Boy, 2:07¼, in the race for the trotting championship of Europe, to be decided at Baden near Vienna, in August, and will give him a special preparation for the European tracks that the Billings stable will visit in advance of the event.

NO MORE BAD LANGUAGE ON BALL FIELDS

Both Presidents Pulliam and Johnson believe it may be necessary before another baseball season has started to enact a law making it compulsory for umpires to expel from the ball grounds any player using language in their conversations with each other. It is natural for athletes in the heat of battle to engage in warm arguments with each other. This is part of the game.

The umpire hears the repartee and sometimes lunches on a pertinently witty retort. Moreover, the dialogue sometimes is amusing to fans who happen to be near enough to the playing field to hear it. But when evenly matched clubs meet, clubs which are fighting for the same position in the race, or clubs between which a bitter rivalry exists, there is a tendency on the part of the players to resort to coarse ply profane appellations in their conversations back and forth, and often these conversations are not carried on in whispers. The result is that people who have paid their good money to see the clubs play are offended by hearing oaths, epithets and other things not intended for their ears, but reaching them, nevertheless.

The rowdies usually punished by expulsion a player applying to him an improper epithet. Why not let Presidents Johnson and Pulliam to instruct him to inflict the same punishment on a player insulting his fellows on the field?

HARVARD CREWS OFF FOR CAMP

Harvard students gave the crews a great sendoff when the oarsmen left Cambridge this afternoon for Red Top-on-the-Thames. The Harvard-Yale regatta this year will take place July 1, somewhat later than usual.

The squad will consist of thirty oarsmen and the coaches and managers and assistant managers of the two squads. The following varsity oarsmen were taken: Sargent, Wald, R. Cutler, E. Cutler, L. Withington, F. Withington, Bacon, Faulkner, Lee, Blakemore, Severance, Whitney, Waite, Smith, Hooper, Forster, Coxswains Hagden, King and Paine and Managers Conway, Thayer and Quin. The following freshmen were in the party: Newton, Metcalf, Hunnewell, Biggins, Baldwin, Richardson, Wiggins, Trumbull, Howell, Anderson and Coxswains Hand and Voorhees and Managers Lowell and Amory.

AMERICAN HORSEMAN IS SICK IN LONDON

A report from London, England, is that the well known horseman, George H. Webb, who went abroad recently to exhibit his famous hunters at the London International Horse Show, is dangerously ill.

CORNELL AT POUGHKEEPSIE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 14.—The Cornell crews, under Coach Courtney, have arrived at Oakes, opposite this city, and went into training quarters at the Shaffer House. The oarsmen spent a lively day. They will row this morning if the water is favorable.

HAYES GIVES UP.

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—John Hayes, the Marathon runner, after going nine miles of a twenty-mile match race with John Svanberg, was seized with a cramp and forced to retire. Svanberg finished the race in 1.52.33 2-5. Svanberg led Hayes by four laps at the time of the latter's retirement.

MANY HEAVY BATTERS IN N. E. LEAGUE

Billy Hamilton, the veteran of the New England League and former star of the Phillies and Boston Nationals, now manager of the Lynn club of the New England League, is leading that organization in batting with the remarkable average of .364. At the present time there is nothing to it but Hamilton, although Barrows, that clever youngster who has been doing phenomenal work with the stick all season for the New Bedford Whalers, is going some with an average of .362. Rondeau, the mill boy picked up by Jesse Burkett as an experiment, is not only in fourth place with a fine average of .351, but he has demonstrated his ability to romp in almost any place on the playing field and make good. Courtney of Haverhill, the speediest thing in the outfield line in the league, is third in batting with .354, and leads the league as well in runs and stolen bases. He is the one youngster of the league who gives promise already of going higher next season.

There are sixteen men batting over .300, a unusually large number for this time of the season for this league. Worcester has six of the first twenty-six batters and four of them are toppling the honor mark. Haverhill has five of the first twenty-six with four above .300.

The champion Worcester team, three times winners of the pennant, is sailing along at the head of the second division after once reaching the top of the pole following a bad start. The champs run up against it hard last week, dropping four of the five games played and tumbling from third place to fifth. The Lynn bunch, headed by Hamilton, closed the week with its eighth successive victory, a winning streak which put the team up at the top of the standing. With a swell pitching staff, and a lively batting team, Lynn looks best for the bunting. Brockton, claiming the best pitching staff in the league, and with the best base running team, will make a hot fight for the honors, and Worcester, despite its lowly position, must be considered. Fall River and Haverhill are also in the running. Fall River has a scrappy aggregation and Haverhill has the hitters.

Lawrence, Lowell and New Bedford are plugging along with poor teams. New Bedford has a swell hitting bunch, but somehow fails to land many games. Lowell has a clever fielding team, the best in the league, but is weak in pitching, as hitting is weak all around. The Lowell franchise will change hands this week, and with a new owner may get up in the standing.

The batting averages of the first twenty-six men are as follows:

...ETCHEL BEST OF ALL FIGHTERS SAYS O'BRIEN

How Johnson and Ketchel Will Shape In the Ring — By Tad

By JACK O'BRIEN.

"What do I think of Ketchel, his chances with Jack Johnson and all that? Well, here goes; Ketchel is a wonder; his middle name is FIGHT—you know that—did you? Well, I know; I've fought them all, excepting the big noise, Jeff, and this goes—Ketchel is the best of them all.

"I am not going to get myself in bad by saying that Ketchel will beat Johnson. He may and he may not. You might say it's a toss up, but I will have a ticket on Stanley. Ketchel is a terrific puncher. Ask me how I know. I think it was in the second round when he dropped over one of those wild lefts. I couldn't describe the source of the punch or whence it came. I tried to block. It caught me on the right arm right below the muscle. My whole arm became numb. I dropped it to my side and shook it. It wasn't broken; then says I to myself, Ketchel has broken that pretender in his glove. Does that give you an idea of the way that chap can punch.

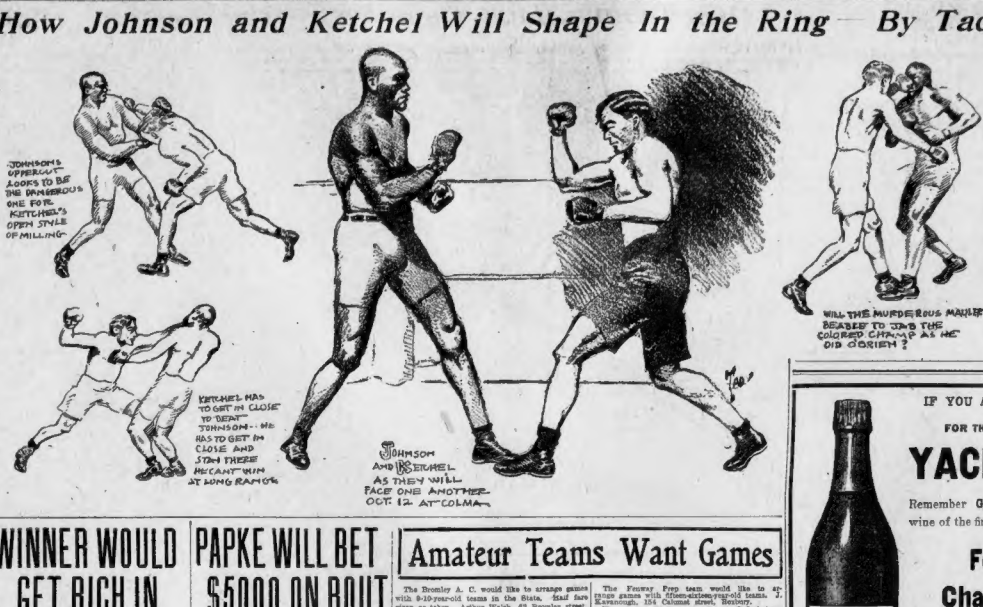
"A left hook to the head, which he just throws at you from any old angle, after he has tried first with a left and then with a right, is not most damaging, for, honestly, his body blows did not bother me as much as one would suppose from the way he let them go, for the very good reason that he just stalls with that body punch, in order to assassinate you with that hook to the head. Now, Johnson's most dangerous wallop and his best is a right-hand hook and uppercut, which he starts in as an awkward manner and turns into a hook into an uppercut.

"Hard to pick a better one.

"I tell you it is a question of who is the better man. Let's take Johnson first. Johnson can fight when right, and he is in no condition now nor has he been of late. He has height, weight and reach on Ketchel, and in condition these will be of advantage to him, but if he underestimates this kid, and takes him on out of condition, then his physical advantages will be a handicap to him. He has a knack of blocking that is marvelous—I tell you that's what made Johnson a fighter; his great defense that comes natural to him. For the toboggan if he does not get down hard lines.

"That is in favor of Ketchel, and, while he will have the time of his life trying to lead on Johnson, he will be able to get him and bring him down to his size if he will develop that body punch.

"On the other hand Ketchel has youth, the strength of a bull, together with the courage of a lion. He is coming and in two years will be the finic marvel of the game—but he must stick to training quarters and not Broadway."



BOXING BITS OF NEWS

If Leach Cross gets stranded on the Coast there will be no trouble in his walking it, as Jeff Gathered close to $20,000 during a year's fanning.

Jim Stewart almost had a match with Sandy Ferguson, the Nancy Hanks of the trotting world, lined down for Jeanette. De Forrest is finding it hard to "Kid" him.

"Kid" McCoy will start a boxing club in Paris, and the first bouts must be with the police. If Coy was accused of so many fakes in this country that he should know one even before the articles are signed.

Billy Papke has agreed to everything in the articles for the Ketchel fight, except the purse side bet. Papke wants to bet that amount, but refuses to take chances. He has figures that Ketchel will be a big favorite over him.

Jimmy De Forrest has an idea that Jim Stewart can beat either Johnson or Ketchel, and he will match the Brockton heavy against either man if anyone wants it. Jim might have a chance, but Kaufman, and a good one, but not with Johnson. Ketchel too much for him.

Jimmy Clabby, the rising young Hammond welterweight, has a few more rounds with Herb Abrahamson before the Hammond Club of Hammond the last week in September. Abrahamson is a protege of Frank Mellorn, on Saturday signed to do battle, the men agreeing to weigh in at 142 pounds three hours before the battle.

Willie Lewis can have a match with Clarence English at the Lyric Athletic Club a week from last night. English, through Manager Tom Jones, asks that the match be made at 142 or 145 at 3 o'clock, as it is better shape now than he has been for the last year, and that the referee weigh them in so there will be no trouble between them.

Jack Britton has decided to stay at the seashore for the Summer, unless a match with Nelson can be arranged before he will let Young Foley oblige him if he will agree to a twenty-five-round bout. Britton has been managed by Johnny Dundee and the two boys in the art of self-defence. A cottage will be fitted up for Jack at Sheepshead Bay.

Frank Klaus, the Pittsburg welterweight, who, after entering the boxing game in this city, has the honor of one of the bouts he was credited to have signed to box Terry Martin six rounds on June 15 at Philadelphia, is a liar.

Young Loungree and Paddy Lavin, of Buffalo, are going to have another go-as-you-please affair on June 18. They have signed articles of agreement calling for ten rounds, Lavin agreeing to stop A. O. of Reading, Pa. They recently battled for six rounds, Lavin having the better of the go.

"All the important big fights in the near future will be staged in the Pacific States," declares Tex Rickard. On June 19, Monte Attell vs. Frankie Nell, at Colma. June 30, Leach Cross vs. Willie Ritchie, ten rounds, same club; July 4, Billy Papke vs. Stanley Ketchel, at Colma; July 18, Nelson vs. Wolgast, ten rounds, Vernon Club, of Los Angeles; July 25, Wolgast vs. Joe Mandot, at Seattle; Aug. 29, Jack Johnson vs. Al Kaufman, twenty rounds.

Manager Jimmy Dime, of the National A. C., of Philadelphia, has matched the red of his middleweight round bouts which he intends to pull off at the Quaker City Club. The first will be held on Monday, June 15. In the first one Johnny Glover, of Boston, will box Jack Attell, of San Francisco. In the second Jimmy Dime, of Philadelphia, will tackle Young Dunn, of Newark, N. J. Both of the boys are managed by Jeffries and Sam Berger will box an exhibition bout.

RUSSIAN BUYS COLTS.

The three colts recently sold by Empire City Farms, Cuba, N. Y., to Colonel A. Schaumburg, of St. Petersburg, have been shipped to Russia. They were Derby Mac, two-year-old black colt by McKinney, 2:11¾, dam Derby Princess, 2:29¼; Worthy One, yearling bay colt by Axworthy, 2:15¾, and Victor Worthy, yearling chestnut colt by Axworthy, dam Lynn Worthy, 2:20¾.

PETER PAN IN TRAINING.

Herman R. Tynon of Newark, Del., has recently received for training the four-year-old stallion Peter Pan. Peter Pan (—) was a two-year-old divided third with Lou Dillon in moneys in the Review Futurity at that age.

WINNER WOULD GET RICH IN WASHINGTON

Probably, all things considered, Washington is actually the best base ball city in the world. It has never had a team that had even the remotest look in for honors of any kind, but always and ever the Washington base ball fan has been loyal, forebearing and long suffering.

Go back to the days when Washington was in the 12-club league. Earl Wagner was the proprietor. Earl knew, as nobody else knew, to what lengths of indulgence the fans at the national capital would go. Let a player show but the faintest possible symptoms of major league form and he was immediately placed on the auction block and sold.

There was never at any time under any circumstances the slightest possible chance for the old Washington team of the 90's to "show," but the club made a lot of money and Wagner was able to buy big blocks of real estate in Florida, Colorado, where he lived.

Nobody can answer the question, and yet it is a fact that in no other city in the country do the "root" so savagely for the home team as they do in Washington, where the cream of sheer incompetence, made up of the natural born residents of Cleveland, Chicago, New York, St. Louis, Boston and the other big major league cities.

Umpires will tell you that they would rather work in any other city in the world than Washington. Even fairish old arbitrators like Jack Sheridan are often chased off the field there by a mob of angry fans —fans, too, who care no more for the welfare of Washington as a city than they do for Paducah, Ky., and that isn't very much.

Put the Washington franchise up at auction tomorrow and the bidding for it would be as spirited as if the right to purchase a club in New York or Chicago were at stake.

PAPKE WILL BET $5000 ON BOUT

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Billy Papke was all ajoy when he received word to-day that articles signed by Ketchel were on the way here for him to sign. "I have been after the chance to win back the title of middleweight champion and I will surely grasp it. I do not know just what the articles have sent me to do, but from what I can learn they suit me to a T. I am as confident that I can trim Ketchel as I was that I could beat Kelly, but, of course, Stanley will give me a harder fight. I was out of shape when he took the title away from me, but I never will neglect myself again.

"I want to make my winning on this fight and I will try and draw Stanley into a $5,000 side bet. I understand that amount is required as a forfeit. If that is true, I will try and get him to consent to let it go as a side bet. They tell me that Ketchel has been going a pretty merry pace in the East. This will not help him in his fight with me one bit. I am taking the best of care of myself and feel that I could get into the ring at a moment's notice. I'll stay that way from now on.

"If I trim Ketchel as decisively as I believe I can, I will just take a little jump across the pond and take on some of the boys there. It appears as though there is some easy money on the other side of it and —but after a little of that, I might be induced to take on Langford over there if conditions are favorable. I do not like to fight a colored man, but the kinder I remain away the longer the public will think I fear him."

Mr. Gilliam has been doing light training ever since he arrived here. He looks better now than he has at any time before and he says he feels great.

VANDERBILT WINS THE FRENCH DERBY

PARIS, June 14.—The French Derby at Chantilly was won by W. K. Vanderbilt's Negotoi in impressive style from Edmond Blanc's Union, with Negofol a stable companion. Overnight, third. The stake was worth $40,600 and the race was witnessed by an immense crowd, including thousands of Americans, who won heavily on the American victory.

Overnight was sent out in front and made all the running to the stretch, when Negofol, closely attended by Union, came through and won in a drive by about two lengths. The Vanderbilt stable was favorite in the betting at 2 to 1, with Union and Baron de Rothschild's Verdun about equal choices. There were twenty-four entries.

AFTER RUSSIAN STALLION.

Hunter C. Moody of Lexington, Ky., is trying to get General Forrest, 2:08, back to this country. He has heard that the Russians are not entirely satisfied with him and have written to a party in St. Petersburg, asking that he get a price on him if possible. He considers General Forrest one of the most consistent sires we have ever had," said Mr. Moody.

CHAMPION IN TRAINING.

Peter W., 3, 2:19¼, who was the 1908 champion three-year-old colt over a half-mile track, is now being prepared for another campaign.

The Test of Charity

By KENNETT HARRIS

HE goes around as if he found the taste of life was bitter.
His mouth awry, and in his eye, a mean, malicious glitter.

Once in a while you'll see him smile; with mirth he'll fairly double,
And shout with glee if he can see another chap in trouble.

But notice how he bends his brow, and growls about the folly
Of fools who jest, and do their best at all times to be jolly!

He sneers at love; he's far above its foolish whims and fancies;
Its hopes and fears evoke his jeers; he scoffs at all romances.

At faith and trust he shows disgust; who have them prove they're blinded,
And should be sent, it's evident, to homes for feeble minded.

Self-interest he thinks the best and sole mainspring of action;
The rule of might oppressing right he views with satisfaction.

He slinks about instilling doubt, and sowing sour dissension—
A bird of ill, all joy to kill, a blight past comprehension.

Yet in his dark heart there's a spark of good, so don't upbraid him;
That must be so, because we know that, like us all, God made him.

If Paris Lived To-day By Nell Brinkley

No. 12—Would His Choice Be This Slim, Ringletted Maiden—the Betty With the Spindrift Hair?

"A slim Betty, brilliant in the pallor of her face and the silken faintness of her hair"

THIS is a "bossy" Betty!

You wouldn't think it. I know, because she's a thin little girl and not very tall, always right there with quick love and sympathy for folks who have the sorrows, and she's gay-hearted, for one. Just the name she's the little one that wears the chief's bonnet in the tribe!

There's a heap of kinds of "bosses."

The selfish cubby kind that rules with bleadings and wheedlings and soft whispered declarations of everlasting affection against your coat: there's the hawk-nosed combination of rows, and a thin crust over a vinegar temper, and a cast-iron will, that sets as tight as any boulder and takes out after you as terrorizingly as "my Hon;" Second-Her half at 12 time was done in a knot on her head instead of the soft beads as usual, and no added jewels for her.

Third—Her skirt stayed above her Yellow Bond Shoes, while she sat skylight, looking in the same direction as the others in the Yellow Room.

Fourth—One of the two bullets fired from Daddy Spencer's revolver, was imbedded in the wall, the other in the ceiling.

Fifth—Mr. Spencer, Roulstable, and Sinclair Rodney, all officers, and a great Paris detective, found Rodney dead. Through the locked gate leading to the studio could be seen the easel, and that the concierge, Bernier, and his wife, had been arrested.

Robert Darzac then drove down and met Mlle. Stangerson, who had been called home by a telegram, and Roulstable stood alone by the Yellow Room door, awaiting further words. "The presbytery has just been robbed," he said, "and Rodney murdered. Nothing of importance has been stolen."

Monsieur Darzac showed great agitation and permitted Roulstable and Sinclair to enter the Yellow Room, but refused to answer questions of any kind.

Roulstable refused to shake hands with Darzac, and left the latter had taken off the glove, which he seemed to disturb Darzac greatly; but after this moment the two had a secret conference, and then in the most friendly manner set about trying to solve the mystery.

In the Heart of the Oak Grove.

WE had crossed an old bridge thrown over the Douve and were entering the grove on the right of the Oak Grove. The oaks here were centuries old. Autumn's withering touch had turned their lofty leaves, and their huge branches, black and convoluted, looked like horrid heads of anti-, mingled with the horrid heads of the darkest, most quaint reptiles such as the imagination could have made on the night of Medusa.

This place, which Mademoiselle found cheerful and in which she lived in the Summer season, appeared to us as sad and funereal now. The soil was black and muddy from the recent rains and the rolling of the fallen leaves; the trunks of the trees were black and the sky above us was gray, as if in mourning, charged with clear fall in with Monsieur de Marquet and his assistant, Monsieur Maleine, because the former was a friend of Daddy Spencer. Roulstable had learned from him how matters stood.

Stangerson's wound was not a bullet wound, but was caused by a powerful blow with an undiscovered weapon.

Second—Her hair at 12 time was done in a knot on her head instead of the soft beads as usual, and no added jewels for her.

Third—Her skirt stayed above her Yellow Bond Shoes, while she sat skylight, looking in the same direction as the others in the Yellow Room.

In the Heart of the Oak Grove.

WE had crossed an old bridge thrown over the Douve and were entering the grove on the right of the Oak Grove. The oaks here were centuries old. Autumn's withering touch had turned their lofty leaves, and their huge branches, black and convoluted, looked like horrid heads of anti-, mingled with the horrid heads of the darkest, most quaint reptiles such as the imagination could have made on the night of Medusa.

This place, which Mademoiselle found cheerful and in which she lived in the Summer season, appeared to us as sad and funereal now. The soil was black and muddy from the recent rains and the rolling of the fallen leaves; the trunks of the trees were black and the sky above us was gray, as if in mourning, charged with great, heavy clouds.

And it was in this sombre and desolate retreat that we saw the white walls of the pavilion as we approached. A queer-looking building without a window visible on the side by which we neared it. A little door alone pierced the entrance to it. It might have passed for a tomb, a vast mausoleum in the midst of a thick forest. As we drew nearer, we were able to make out its exact position. The building ordinarily took in light it needed from the south, that is to say from the open country. The little door closed on the park.

Mademoiselle Stangerson and Monsieur Robert have found it an ideal seclusion for their work and their dreams.

Before mounting the three steps leading up to the door of the pavilion Roulstable stopped and asked point blank:

"What was the motive for the crime?"

"Speaking for myself, Monsieur, there can be no doubt on the matter," replied Mademoiselle Stangerson's fiance, greatly distressed. "The marks of the fingers, the scratches on the chest and throat of Mademoiselle Stangerson show that the frightful wound, which may, according to appearances, have served as a weapon, was not done by any other hand. Monsieur Robert, who has known Mlle. Marquet since infancy, has never had a single enemy. His life history is known and analyzed. In fact, only the blood of the last victim, but of previous crimes."

A motive—yes, but the use of such a terrible, "a more certain weapon than a heavy hammer."

"The wounded man pretends to be so," said Monsieur Darzac coldly. "The left hand of the body bears the print of the right hand inflicted. My belief is that the wound would have been mortal if the blow had not been arrested. The blood-stained hammer found in the arm by Mademoiselle Stangerson, and after having been wounding the man if she had succeeded in wounding the man with the first shot of the revolver, she would, doubtless, have escaped the blow with the hammer. But she certainly had enough strength left to use the revolver, she fired at the first shot of the revolver, she deviated and lodged in the ceiling. It was the second only that took effect."

Having said this, Monsieur Darzac knocked at the door of the pavilion. He must confess to feeling a strong impatience to reach the spot where the crime had been committed. It was some time before the door was opened by a man whom I at once recognized as Daddy Jacques.

He appeared to be well over sixty years of age. He had a long white beard and white hair. He wore a flat cap of black velvet on his head, a suit of chestnut-colored velveteen, worn at the sides, and wooden shoes on his feet. He had rather a wrapping dressing gown, the expression of which lighted up however, as soon as he saw Monsieur Darzac.

"Friend," he said, "I am glad to see you."

"Did your mistress wear her hair in bands that evening? You know what I mean—over her forehead?"

"Yes, monsieur. My mistress never wore her hair in the way you suggest, neither on that day nor on any other. Monsieur Robert, but of course the order does not apply to you. These gentlemen of justice have seen everything there is to be seen, and made enough drawings and drawn up enough reports."

"Excuse me, Monsieur Jacques, one question before anything else," said Roulstable.

"What is it, young man? If I can answer it—"

Miss Anne Morgan Thinks She Doesn't Need a Vote

She Is Mistaken—Although Other Women Need It More Than She Does

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

The daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan is an energetic young woman, trying to be useful in a world that has made her fairly comfortable since her birth.

The other day Miss Morgan made a speech, talking to some navy yard workmen in whose behalf she had planned a restaurant on a sane basis.

Miss Morgan talked of the vote for women as though she hadn't a very high idea of the sacred female ballot. Said she: "Many of us women do not need this suffrage to make us loyal and competent citizens of the United States. Many of us are content to labor quietly for the good of our fellows," etc.

The other day the Queen of England said something that sounded very much like this. Good, innocent Queen Alexandra, who knows as much about real life as a young unhatched peacock inside of the shell, was very much distressed about the ballot and the women that wanted it.

It is not unusual for women that are prosperous, well clothed, well fed and free from material cares to think that they don't need the ballot.

Miss Morgan, like Queen Alexandra, doesn't need the ballot as much as some others, because certain things are not included in her life.

For instance:

Miss Morgan hasn't got a drunken husband coming home at night with empty pockets and a heavy fist. If she had such a husband she would want the vote to help her fight the whiskey seller on the corner that makes her husband a drunkard, and to fight the more criminal political boss that helps the whiskey seller to evade the laws, taking in exchange the drunkard's vote.

Miss Morgan doesn't work for a living in a store until 6 o'clock at night and then find herself packed indecently, uncomfortably, day after day, in a crowded street car. When she wants to go out she rings a bell, and a nice young man with large buttons and calves to match calls her nicely padded limousine motor, and she travels comfortably. If she got into the crowded car and were jammed up against a half-dozen men as sardines are packed against each other in a box she would be glad to have the vote, and vote against the Street Car Trust.

Miss Morgan doesn't own a small two-room apartment in a rear tenement. She doesn't buy coal by the bucket or ice by the pound. She doesn't cry over young children that are cold in the Winter and thirsty and ill in the Summer.

She hasn't endured the agony of bringing children into the world in poverty and want and the worse agony of taking them to the cemetery and starving the others to pay for the funeral of the dead one.

If she had gone through the experiences of the tenement house mother she would want the vote to rebuke and dismiss the hypocrites in Congress and on the bench and in public office everywhere—hypocrites and faithless servants that work only for the man with millions and obey only his orders.

Miss Morgan doesn't fret about the price of butter or beef or coal or gas. Rent doesn't worry her, and, to her, taxes are an interesting abstraction. But if she paid rent and if it were scraped together with cracked, calloused, bony fingers; if she walked from one butcher shop to another looking for the undesirable scrap meat that could be bought cheap!

If Miss Morgan could buy only the cheap things that wear out most quickly, if the gas bill were a monthly terror to her, and the rent day a periodical purgatory, she would abhor our system of suffrage and government which makes the women carry the heavy load and gives them no say in the laws, no protection against the heavy taxation of the trust.

Miss Anne Morgan is an estimable, agreeable young woman. Her father's energy has allowed her to grow up in a peaceful, prosperous atmosphere in which she feels that she doesn't need the vote.

But Miss Morgan is young, she is still studying. She has unusual opportunities for acquiring valuable information about government—since so many of the men hired and put in office by the little people GO TO HER FATHER FOR THEIR ORDERS.

Miss Morgan will develop, and like all humans that progress, she will change her mind. She will live to WANT the vote, and to get it.

We haven't the slightest doubt that she will live to hold some important office and do well the work entrusted to her.

Miss Morgan, for instance, would make a very good Mayor in the city in which she lives. She wouldn't want graft or any profits. Those that know her even slightly would feel sorry for the grafter in office that might try to cheat under her administration—she would make that man unhappy.

It is a good thing to have Miss Morgan, and Queen Alexandra, and all the other woman that take some part in public life, and therefore invite public attention, show interest in this question of woman suffrage and in other public questions.

Women have moral character on their side. They are more honest than men. They are new and enthusiastic in the field of public effort. They would make faithful public servants and conscientious voters!

We wish very much that Miss Anne Morgan would change her mind to-morrow—other women and men have done it more quickly—and start at once preaching the right of women to vote and share in the control of their own destiny.

It is rather sickening to say that a mother who gives ten men to the nation, who CREATES TEN VOTES, isn't fit to cast ONE vote. You might as well say that Michael Angelo is inferior to one of the statues or paintings of his own creation.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

GOOD AND BAD ITALIANS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Allow me to thank you for the splendid editorial on behalf of the Italian people. It is, indeed, too bad that the blame of all this so-called "Black Hand" work should be laid at the doors of the Italians.

We have our good men and our bad men, just as all other nations have, and your editorial will go a great way toward censoring the good Italians, who are deploring, the lamentable state of affairs. Yours truly,

GEORGE S. ARCIERO.

KEEP THE BEEF HERE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I read in the papers recently that the prices for beef are going up. As the farmers say meat is scarce in this country at present, wouldn't it be wise to put restrictions on the export of meat? Enormous quantities are shipped to England and other countries, and if this meat remained here the prices would soon go down.

Forts vs. Navy

By Paul Thieman

ADMIRAL SEBREE'S assertion that our coast cities are defenseless involves a new military point. This new war theory is of great interest, at least.

It is that great, heavy, costly coast defence works are a handicapped expenditure. The new military thought is that it is better to put the money into mobile fleets and mobile land forces.

The idea of forts to protect seaports is deeply rooted and hard to put aside.

However, the new theory appears plausible. It holds that, no matter how powerful the cogun-directed works and guns, of course an invading army would and could land far on the flank and march on the supposedly well-protected port in the rear.

Seacoast fortifications, of course, are built against an attack by a fleet—not against siege by an army.

And no admiral would be so foolish as to range his ships squarely upon heavy shore batteries. No battleships can overcome great modern forts with their fixed zones of range and fire.

No fleet could overcome Boston's shore batteries.

Even if the attacking fleet could pass the batteries it could not hold the city save with the menace of bombardment. And the rules of modern war do not permit such vandalism. It will be remembered that Dewey had to send for an army to take Manila.

To occupy and hold Boston, New York or San Francisco the enemy would have to come with an army.

His ships would make a diversion against the seacoast defences while the troops were being landed at some point lacking defence.

Therefore—so this new theory goes—the only common sense way to prevent a attack is to have a great fleet, which could engage the enemy's naval convoy. Whatever the final result of battle with his heavy ships the fight—in its swift outset—would be one of utter havoc for the helpless troop ships. He would have to send his fleet first and bottle or annihilate the protecting fleet. And harbor defenses lead to no bottling process.

An instance would have been if the Spaniards had possessed enough naval force, or had kept at sea so as to rip through our transports at night on their way to Santiago de Cuba.

It will be remembered that our army was not permitted to sail from Tampa until it was sure that Cervera's squadron was bottled up within Santiago's defences.

And the seaward works of that strong hold were of no avail except to keep off fleet out.

Schley's and Sampson's squadrons—having bottled Cervera in the harbor—enabled the army to land and invest the city. And the army drove Cervera out.

That experience seems to sustain the theory that warships, not seaward defences, are the thing.

To be sure, if Santiago had not had shore batteries, Sampson could have gone in. But he could not have gone in without fighting Cervera. And so, after all, it was the ships—not the batteries.

And so the old idea of shoreworks is now said to be obsolete.

That is the theory. It does not show that coast defences may be abolished. But it does show that the best defence for our great seacoast cities, Boston, New York and San Francisco, is a great navy.

"The Song of Summer"

By Wex Jones

NOW pictures of the bathing girl appear in magazines, and all the ads of real estate are full of charming scenes—they all tell how a bungalow coats but a thousand bones—and when your thousand all has gone, you've only bought the stones. But country life is healthy, for whatever place you are, you've got to walk—it isn't safe to wait to catch a car.

The railroads tell of woods and lakes and such bucolic trips; the steamship lines of Northern seas and well-appointed ships. The clerk is doping out the place where he will spend his dough; the girl behind the counter is planning where to go.

Wonderland is pink with pleasure, if the laws are blue; the mosquito's through his waiting for the porous piccadoo. The lifeguards tan their shoulders on all the city beaches, and cunning little freckles peep upon the Summer peaches.

The champ is on the water who tries to rock the boat, and is drowning his companions who happen not to float. The fool is sure swimming who pretends he's going to drown, and thus jokes away the helpers from the one who's going down.

Now the straw is in the soda, and a pippin holds the straw—she can drink more wondrous mixtures than a barkeep ever saw. Hot Scotts is in the din card and the beer is on the ice, and the cool glasrickey's waiting for the men that's got the price.

Now the fly is getting busy, after six months' rest and sleep, and is looking for a baldhead on whose dome to scrape and creep.

Electric fans have started whizzing, and, with diabolic craft, always put the wretched human in an undertaker's draft; they will cool your fevered pulses and stiffen up your neck, and leave you, when they finish, a paralytic wreck.

Now the people in the tenements perceive the need of ice, and so the watchful magnates are doubling up the price.

The waistcoat and its wearer are growing more aloof; the gardens sprout in suburbs and also on the roof. In short there's not the slightest use to write another line, for the Summer's come to us by every blooming sign.
